CIRCLING the CIRCLE

—The New York court of special sessions fined a father for spanking his 20-year-old daughter.

—A White Leghorn hen at the Nebraska Agricultural College poultry farm has laid 1,200 eggs in less than nine years.

—All but one of the 10 children of Isaac Forbes of Leroy, Ill., weigh more than 200 pounds each.

—David Green, a New York importer, predicts that the straw hat will be a thing of the past among well-dressed men within five years.

—J. C. Lee of Dawson, Ga., was run over by a farm tractor two days in succession, but was not badly hurt either time.

—Florence De Villier traveled from South Africa to Philadelphia to have removed a paper clip which had been in her lung for 12 years.

—A calf belonging to W. H. Kirkendall of Blue Mountain, Miss., was only 12 inches high and weighed only 15 pounds when three weeks old.

—Judge Elmer Kahl of Sidney, Neb., sentenced two men to jail for 60 days on bread and water for violating the prohibition law.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mack, of Cleveland, arrested for spooning in their own car, were awarded $3,675 damages by the common pleas court.

—The New York supreme court has ruled that when a man is sent to prison for life he is legally dead, and his wife can hold his property and marry again.

—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kopinsky, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who lived together 41 years and were divorced last February, were recently married again.

—Ike Martina, 24 inches high, a vaudeville performer of Jacksonville, Fla., has filed suit for divorce from his wife, who is 23 inches high, charging cruelty.

—Two puppies weighing only about one and a half ounces each were born at Lewiston, Me., their mother being Lady Flame, a pedigree Pomeranian.

—As the congregation in the South side church in Chicago was singing "Lead, Kindly Light," all the lights went out and candles were used to finish the service.

—Daniel Brown, a Tennessee mountaineer who believes that man must not alter the appearance God gave him, was arrested for refusing to permit his two sons to be vaccinated.

—When Joseph Robeen, 72, applied to a St. Louis judge for a marriage license and was asked the name of the bride-to-be, he replied, "I don't know; I just met her three weeks ago."

—A street sweeper found a package of gems worth $1,500 in a New York street, where it had lain unnoticed for four days, and restored it to its owner.

—Miss Lisbeth Apler, who scratched her name and address on a comb she made in a German factory, will shortly wed Robert Press of New York, who later bought the comb and courted her by correspondence.

—Mrs. Emma McMahon, 106 years old, of Kansas City, Mo., is a supervisor in a knitting mill, and helps to support her 70-year-old son, who she says "is too old and feeble to work."

POLICE GRILL HICKMAN'S PAL ABOUT SLAYING

Grand Jury Will Meet on Day of Arraignment to Investigate Other Killings.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30.—(INS)—Was Welby Hunt, named as a bandit killer in the latest confession of William Edward Hickman, connected in any way with the kidnaping and murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker?

Investigation along this line was being conducted today, according to Harold L. Davis, chief deputy district attorney. Davis said the facts in the second murder case against young Hickman, who involved his former pal, Hunt, will be placed before the county grand jury promptly.

This is the killing of C. Ivy Toms, Los Angeles druggist, in a holdup on Christmas eve, 1926. Hickman early yesterday confessed to participating (Concluded on Page Eight)

PEDESTRIAN IS HURT SEVERELY IN AUTO MISHAP

James Reichelderfer Struck by Automobile Driven by Ashville Resident.

James Reichelderfer was struck by a Ford touring car Friday noon near the northeast corner of Court and Main streets. Mr. Reichelderfer was crossing the street from the First National bank to the Betz and Son restaurant when he was hit. He was thrown to the street, but was not run over by the car that struck him. He suffered a severe gash on the left side of his head, and both wrists were bruised.

The injured man was removed to the office of Dr. D. V. Courtright, where he was given surgical treatment and then taken to the City hospital at Chillicothe in the Albaugh Company Invalid car.

Mr. Reichelderfer's injuries are not serious and it is thought that he will be out in a few days.

The Ford was driven by Edward Campbell, who was accompanied by his brother, Henry Campbell. Mr. Campbell is an upholster, residing on the Ashbrook farm near Ashville. In speaking of the accident the driver of the car claims he made a left hand turn coming down Court street and turning into East Main street, the red light signal for Main street was up, giving him the right to make the turn. He saw Mr. Reichelderfer walking across the street when he was right on him, and he attempted to turn his car to miss him, but Mr. Reichelderfer turned right with his car and he could not avoid hitting him, Campbell said.

AGED RESIDENT OF KINGSTON SUCCUMBS

Mrs. Catherine Anna Wilkens Dies at Home—Funeral Will Be Sunday.

Mrs. Catherine Anna Wilkens, 76, a widely known resident of Kingston, died at her home on Main street at 3:55 p. m. Thursday following an illness from the infirmities of old age.

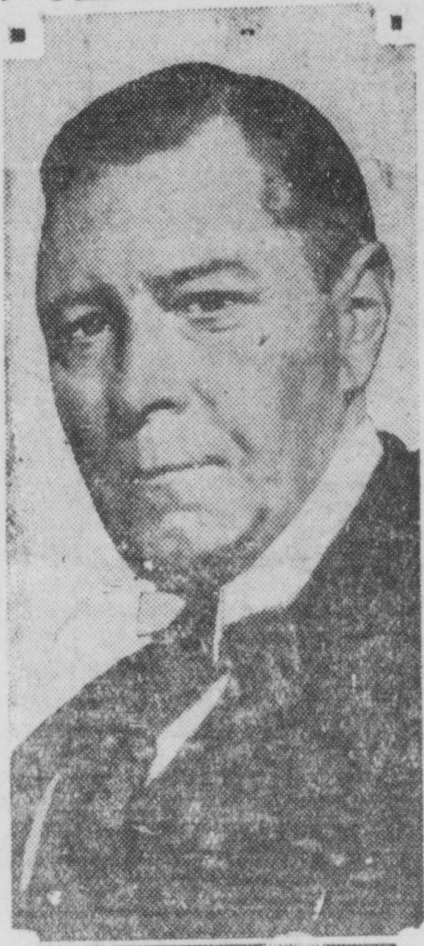

Mrs. Wilkens was born in Pickaway county on Nov. 11, 1851, the daughter of Jeremiah and Mary Dodd. She was twice married, first to Conrad Miller, who died in 1891 and then to Wesley H. Wilkens, a Civil War veteran, who died 15 years ago. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist church.

Surviving her are four children, who are: John Miller, Mrs. Minnie Foley, and Mrs. Dora Miller, all of Kingston, and Mrs. Cora Dilts, of Circleville.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Kingston Methodist church, the Rev. Floyd Webb officiating. Burial will be in Salem cemetery in charge of the W. H. Albaugh company.

"Bob" Bates, After 35 Years on Herald, Leaves Its Employ to Enter Own Shop

Thirty-five years ago, or to be exact, on July 5, 1892, Robert H. Bates, better known as "Bob" Bates, came to Circleville from Portsmouth, O., and entered the office of his brother-in-law, Walter C. Darst, to learn the trade of a printer. After doing all the jobs around a newspaper office from devil to compositor and make-up, he chose to learn the art of running a linotype, which has revolutionized the printing business.

Since the days of Gutenberg, type was set by hand, but now the linotype takes the place of five compositors, and the machine is so complex that the inventor worked on it twelve years before the machine was complete, and ready to be placed on the market. The inventor became a raving maniac, and died in an asylum, never reaping the benefits of his life work.

Mr. Bates not only mastered the

LONE EAGLE AT THIRD CAPITAL IN LONG TOUR

American Ambassador of Good Will Plans to Leave Saturday for Salvador.

BELIZE, British Honduras, Dec. 30 (UP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at 9:45 a. m. local time (10:45 a. m. Eastern Standard time).

He had started from Aurora Airdome, Guatemala City at 6:21 a. m. Guatemala time, to continue his Central American good will tour.

The 250-mile trip over volcanoes and jungle took three hours and 24 minutes.

Lindbergh circled the athletic field near the coast in the Spirit of St. Louis for a few minutes before deciding he could make the landing. He had been told it might be impossible to land there.

But the weather favored him. A clear sky with a sun beating down gave him confidence and he swooped down easily, landing gracefully.

BOY, AUTO VICTIM, TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

John McGinnis Suffering From Blood Tumor, X-ray Examination Reveals.

Complications arising from head injuries which he received when struck by an automobile and thrown to the pavement on his head has caused the removal to Grant hospital of John McGinnis, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGinnis of North Court street.

It was feared by the attending physician, Dr. O. H. Dunton, that the boy's skull had been fractured, but an X-ray examination by Dr. J. M. Baldwin revealed that a blood tumor had formed between the boy's scalp and his skull.

It was decided not to operate, the physicians deciding that nature will effect the cure. The lad is now at his father's home.

COAST GUARD BOAT SINKS AFTER CRASH

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(INS)—Twenty-six men comprising the crew of the coast guard cutter Rush, which was sunk in Ambrose Channel late last night in a collision with the Standard Oil Company tanker J. A. Moffett, Jr., were brought ashore safely early today by the crews of two other cutters.

The tanker, bound for Corpus Christi, Texas, was struck by the Rush in the fog. The cutter sank rapidly and the crew took to the boats.

Bridge Builders Complete Last Of Railroad's Spans

David Elliott and his bridge construction gang, who have been here since May 5, constructing steel overhead bridges for the Bethlehem Steel company have finished the last bridge, the overhead on the Hays road, which leads from Shadeville to Groveport. This bridge was the longest on the division, nearly five hundred feet long. It took seven spans to carry the overhead structure over the roadways, as they are far apart at this point.

The bridge construction on the C. and O., in this county alone done by the Bethlehem Steel Company will run in cost up to a million dollars. The bridges are the best that could be built for the money so it is claimed cost was not considered, as the company desired the most substantial bridges they could get to withstand the heavy traffic.

GEORGE SMITH DIES FOLLOWING HUNTING TRIP

Retired Farmer of Circleville Succumbs to Apoplexy After Sudden Attack.

Death accompanied George Smith, 68, retired farmer, of 500 East Main street, Thursday as he was returning to his home from a hunting trip when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy to which he succumbed at 7 p. m.

Mr. Smith had been out hunting the major portion of the day, and while returning home, he was overcome with severe pains in his side. He drove his car to the side of the Williamsport pike, just west of the river bridge.

Motorists Assist Him

Passing motorists saw his condition and assisted in removing him to his home. Dr. Holman was called. Mr. Smith grew rapidly worse and he became unconscious, dying a short time later.

Mr. Smith was born at New Holland, Jan. 30, 1859, the son of George and Elizabeth Crabbe Smith.

He married Miss Margaret Gephart in this city, Oct. 2, 1888. His wife and three sons survive. The sons are: Charles H., Earl A., and George Ralph Smith.

Of his immediate family, three sisters and a brother are living. They are: Mrs. George Try, of this city; Mrs. Ida Hillsheimer, of Springfield; Miss Ada Smith, of Toledo, and Howard Smith, of Bainbridge.

U. B. Church Member

Mr. Smith was a member of the United Brethren church, and socially a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

The funeral services will be conducted at the home at 10 a. m., Monday. The Rev. S. W. Hiles will officiate.

The pallbearers will include three sons, Charles H. Smith, Earl A. Smith and G. Ralph Smith and Harold O. Grant, S. C. Grant and H. S. Leist.

Interment will be in Forest cemetery in charge of W. H. Albaugh company.

LICENSE OFFICE TO BE OPEN HOLIDAYS

Commissioner Hedges Will Aid Auto Owners in Getting Their 1928 Plates.

On account of the unusual conditions set up by the fact that New Year's Day falls on Sunday and the general observance of Monday as a holiday, Deputy Commissioner B. T. Hedges has made arrangements to furnish plates to all those whom the police stop and order not to move cars until 1928 plates are secured.

The office will be open Sunday and Monday for the accommodation of owners of motor vehicles, who have not yet secured license plates. This county has nearly 7000 motor vehicles, and only half of this number has secured license plates.

Wife Slayer Loses Fight for Liberty in Cincinnati Court Called Dangerous Psychopath.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 30.—(INS) George Remus, once the brains of a powerful bootleg king, today was adjudged insane and was ordered sent to the state hospital for the criminally insane at Lima, Ohio.

The finding, handed down by Probate Judge Leuders is the sequel to the killing by Remus of his wife, Augusta Imogene Holmes Remus in Eden park.

Remus accused his wife of a love affair with Franklin Dodge, federal prohibition officer.

Following a trial of five weeks, a jury of 10 men and two women, after deliberating 19 minutes, brought in a verdict of "not guilty on the sole ground of insanity," the only "not guilty" verdict allowed in the charge of Trial Judge Chester Shook.

In committing Remus to the state asylum, Judge Leuders asserted it was only right to confine him there until he can fully establish his sanity as the three physicians who examined the former convict asserted he is a "dangerous psychopath" in that he believes it is right to take a human life.

Remus probably will be taken to Lima immediately to start the new year behind the bars of the asylum.

SIGNING BONDS FOR FRIENDSHIP IS CONDEMNED

Corporations, Not Individuals, Should Shoulder Liability, Rotarians Learn.

Denouncing the signing of surety bonds by individuals for "friendship's sake," Attorney Meeker Terwilliger delivered a fine talk before the Rotarians at their noonday luncheon in the Boggs hotel, Thursday.

Mr. Terwilliger cited the contents of the will of the late Elbert Gary, in which he urged his family and their descendants not to sign any bond or obligation for any other person.

The Circleville attorney showed the legal tangles that result from such an act and how a person's entire estate may become tied up through the signing of such sureties.

The surety bond is at times clearly and with uncertainty outlined by the legislature. Then the Supreme Court, hearing a surety bond case, may make another decision and before this becomes a reality the legislature has met again and amended the law. The decision of four out of seven of the judges on the Supreme bench can regulate a decision.

A surety was defined as one or more persons attempting to be answerable for the acts of another. (Concluded on Page Eight)

AUTO DRIVER LOSES OPERATING RIGHTS

Telegrapher Given $100 Fine and 10 Days in Jail After Spree in Car.

J. D. Moore, a telegraph operator of the C. & O. railroad, is in the police station, charged with driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of corn liquor.

He was arrested by Janitor Delong, following a collision with the Ford car of Robert Wolf, which was parked in front of the armory on East Franklin street, and which Mr. Moore succeeded in pulling a wheel off. After the accident, Mr. Moore drove his car into the Chevrolet garage for repairs.

In police court Friday morning, Mr. Moore was found guilty, and was given a fine of $100, the costs, ten days in jail and deprived of running or operating his car for thirty days, which is really only twenty days, as he will be a guest of the city for ten days.

MILITARY MEN FACE NEW YEAR FEARING WAR

Three Hundred Thousand More Soldiers Under Arms in Central Europe.

BY ALFRED TYRNAUER

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

VIENNA, Dec. 30—Central Europe "mother of wars," has taken a new year's inventory of her military prospects for the future and finds that there are 300,000 more men under arms at the beginning of 1928 than there were just before the outbreak of the great war in 1914. It was in 1914 that the "militarism of Austria-Hungary" plunged Europe into armed conflict.

Throughout the Balkans, Poland and Czechoslovakia sober-minded men regard 1928 with anxiety. Not the least of their worries is the bristling line of bayonets which stretches from the Baltic in the north to the Black Sea in the south.

Though six of the "heirs" to the old Austro-Hungarian dual monarchy are weaker financially than was Franz Josef's old empire, they are keeping up standing armies totaling 385,000 men against the 505,000 maintained by Austria-Hungary, Roumania and Serbia in 1914.

Official statistics compiled by Austrian authorities show the following armies in central Europe:

Czechoslovakia—160,000.

Jugoslavia—120,000.

Roumania—210,000.

Hungary and Austria—75,000.

The peace strength of the Austro-Hungarian army before the war was 420,000, and that of Roumania and Serbia, 130,000 making a total of 550,000.

In addition to the 835,000 soldiers constantly under arms, the six states of central Europe have a host of unofficial armed organizations and military police estimated at more than 1,500,000.

Chinaman Carried Off Maiden of His Choice

"Lah-bah," or the "twelfth moon eighth day" is always lucky for marriages. Poor people of the Anhui province in China can be sure of an auspicious day without going to the expense of consulting the fortune-tellers.

This year in the town of Luanchow there was a novel marriage procession. A young man of twenty-two wanted his bride, but her parents are said to have thought him too poor for the girl and demanded a sum of money which they thought would end in the match being broken off. Friends suggested he should abduct the girl; so on the auspicious "eighth" he and a few friends went to the girl's home, and they were in such force as to carry the day. To prevent anything like lawlessness the bride and groom were bound together back to back and the young man was marched off, like the snail, with his house chia li—wife—on his back. The girl had protested she did not want to be his wife, and apparently sulked, but next day things were smoothed over by friends. "But why tie them back to back?" asked one. "Oh, to stop the girl from struggling," said a friend of the groom. In other words it was cave man stuff.—North China Herald.

Good Heart Can Rout

Hawks of Adversity

What an unimportant trifle may often change the course of a man's life!

Once I was going thoughtfully along the highway.

My soul was weighted down by heavy forebodings. I was overcome with despondency.

I raised my head . . . straight before me ran the road between two stiff rows of poplars. And across the road, about ten paces in front of me, were hopping in single file a family of sparrows, full of life, merriment and courage.

One, in particular, distinguished himself by his bold, sideways hoppings; he stuck out his little breast, and twittered as bravely as if he did not fear the devil himself. A true conqueror!

Meanwhile a hawk circled overhead, whose destiny it was, perhaps, to devour this very hero.

I looked, was forced to laugh, and regained my self-possession. My gloomy thoughts had vanished; I felt again courage, energy and life.

A hawk may be circling over me; but the devil take it—let's keep a good heart!—From Turgenev's Poems in Prose.

GREY'S "NEVADA" IS SPLENDID PICTURE

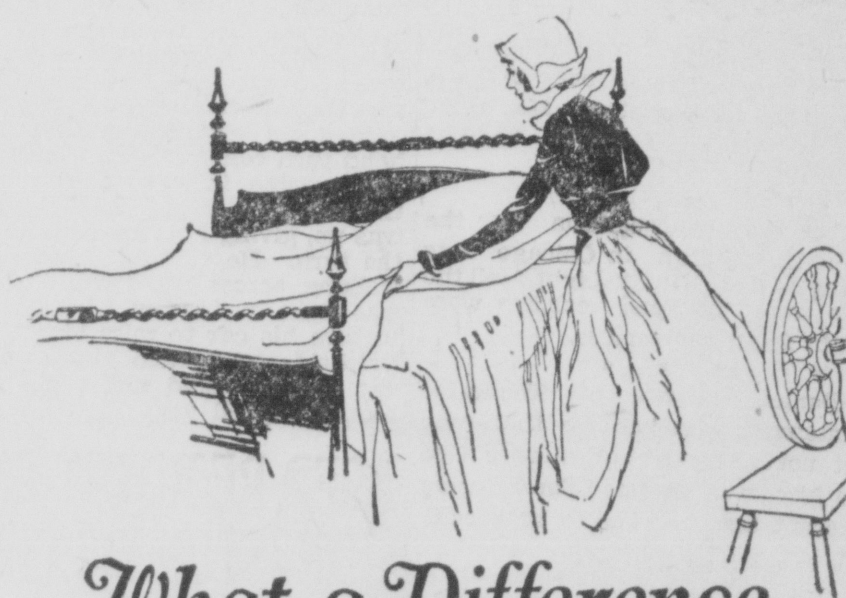

One type of picture, typically American and immensely popular, can be made only in America—and that is the Western drama. America and all the rest of the world loves this type of adventurous screen story. The dean of Western writers is Zane Grey whose name is famous the globe around, and his latest romantic tale for the screen "Nevada" had its premiere Thursday at the Metropolitan theater.

Paramount is to be congratulated upon its monopoly of the Zane Grey stories and the manner in which these stories are filmed.

"Nevada" like its fore-runners, is faithful to the West. It has all the southwest frontier country in the days of the cattle barons, the days of two-gun men, brave sheriffs, picturesque cowboys, villainous cattle rustlers and lovely heroines.

Eyesight of Snakes

The milky appearance of the eyes of a snake shortly before the slough is cast is due to the separation of the outer layer of epidermis from the cornea, resulting in impaired vision. This gives rise to various superstitions regarding snakes going blind during the dog days of late summer.

WOMEN AT LAST VIOLATE LAW OF DAME FASHION

Milliners Condemn Cloche Hats For Ones With Brims, But All in Vain.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30—(INS)—Learn once in a way women have turned down the decrees of fashion.

"Hats are to have brims," said the fashionable milliners a few weeks ago. "The cloche hat is dead—so bad for the hair, you know."

But Eve has refused to abandon the cloche. The vagabond vogue still lives. Woman has refused to be stampeded. Today every second woman is wearing a small hat which is close fitting, and both the cloche and the vagabond, in their up-to-date form, have their adherents everywhere.

The close-fitting pudding basin has gone, or at least only the foundation of it is left. On to that is grafted, as it were, wings, chenille embroidery, fan-shaped side pieces, feather mounts, folds and pleats.

Head embroidery is a favorite form of trimming. Silver beads and cut steel beads, worked in circles, on long lines or squared as a light touch to a dark hat. On a red one with an inch wide upturned brim across the front there are rows of steel beads, one above the other.

Some of the autumn models are: Hats of supple flannel felt have flute-like folds across one side of the brim.

A velvet skull cap has whirls and circles of chenille embroidery standing up from the hat itself.

Softly curled mounts of ostrich feathers rest on each cheek. There are tiny rosettes of silk braid; or delicate touches of gold and silver embroidery, or braid, or even a spray of leaves.

Velvet hats are more elaborate, but they again have the close-fitting skull-like foundation. From them rise high folks of exquisitely soft gauze velvet with its satin-like gleam and its beautiful autumn colorings.

Felt hats have ear pieces. Sometimes they finish in two loose ends of soft pleated felt. Sometimes they are rounded like scallops, or are square and fit closely against the face.

There are hats, too, which have a suede panel of a paler color inserted at either side of the brim. These come right down on the cheeks and are larger than the brim itself.

But no matter what form the decoration takes, nor how high on the crown rise the velvet swathings, it all comes to this in the end—that every second hat preserves the close-fitting outline.

Old Moore's Famous Almanack Sees Catastrophes Ahead In 1928

By J. C. OESTHEICHER

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 30—(INS)—Ceaseless unrest in China, two influenza epidemics, threats of war between the United States and Japan, four disastrous fires or explosions in America and England, two earthquakes, storms, floods and volcanic disturbances, the illness of a member of the British royal family, the death of a famous statesman, a cholera epidemic in India, coal riots in the middle west of the United States, the loss of a warship with many casualties and an abortive attempt to restore to the throne a deposed monarch of central Europe.

These are the main events the world may expect during the year, 1928, according to the predictions of Old Moore's Almanack, one famous handbook which has had a place upon nearly every English library table or bookshelf for generations.

Brighter Outlook

In spite of these impending catastrophes, Old Moore sees a brighter outlook for the world in general during the coming year. Industry is healthy, he sees, but the governments of the world will find themselves beset with worries of many different sorts.

Old Moore is specific in his predictions. About the 18th of April, according to his prophecy, a cinema fire will cause consternation in America and about the same time a hurricane in the middle west will involve further loss of life and property. The coal riots he predicts will occur in September, and they will be prompted by efforts to lessen the power of the unions.

"Mars is hovering over America and Japan," Old Moore declares in his predictions for February. Throughout the almanack this sentence is reiterated; he sees the questions of immigration and naval supremacy precipitating a dispute which threatens to develop into armed conflict.

Of China, Old Moore has much to say, and little of it is optimistic. He sees the Communist influence causing incessant uprisings, with foreign life and property constantly endangered.

Serious fires in London and the Midlands are on the calendar for February, followed by the American motion picture fire in April. October, too, will have its share of disaster, for Old Moore foresees fire or explosions threatening oil wells in America. On the 22nd of October, according to the predictions, a scandal at Geneva will rock the world.

The members of the royal family who is slated for the sick-bed is not identified, but the event will take place early in April, causing widespread anxiety throughout the United Kingdom.

In June, Europe will be thrown into a turmoil by an attempted coup-d'etat to re-seat a deposed monarch on a tottering throne.

September will be a busy month, according to Old Moore, for in that period the famous statesman, American or British, will die, a war vessel will be sunk with a heavy loss of life. China will be embroiled in serious internal difficulties, and the coal riots in the United States will cause great alarm.

Earthquake Seen

March and December will see earthquakes in different parts of the world and August will be the month of a serious financial panic in one of the British colonies. Trouble in China is forecasted specifically in January, February, March, September and November.

But in general, Old Moore concludes the world will be better in the year to come. The average man will look upon a life less in an "eat-drink and be merry" sort of way, and will devote his time to a serious sober attempt to make the New Year a prosperous one.

Wilton Rug

The term "Six Frame Wilton" is used to denote the number of colors that are used in the weaving of a Wilton rug. The word "frame" is used to indicate the wire that is used, over which the threads are woven. Also this frame wire is used in the cutting of the thread so as to give the piled effect of the rug.

MADISON COUNTY

PIONEER IS DEAD

LONDON, O., Dec. 30—Lester Bidwell, 78, pioneer Madison county, farmer and business man, is dead following an illness of several years. He became a member of the board of trustees of the Madison county Children's Home when it was built years ago. He also was a member of the West Jefferson Masonic lodge.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Minnie C. Bidwell, principal of the London high school; three sons by his first marriage; one brother, half brother and half sister. Funeral will be Saturday at residence. Burial will be here.

IN SOCIETY

MISS ALLISON DELAPLAINE, SOCIETY EDITOR.

Gay New Year's Dance Is Given At Elks' Home

The outstanding social event of the holiday season was the dance Thursday night at the Elks' Home which all society folks attended from the hours of nine until three. The floor was crowded all evening with over a hundred couples most of whom were from Circleville. There were also many persons from out of town.

The Elks' hospitality extended by the reception committee at the front door and ending with the last handshake after the "Home Sweet Home" dance, lent a most enjoyable atmosphere to the affair. Subdued lights and a few Christmas decorations added in colors of soft or vivid hues. The splendid music was provided by Burchfield's orchestra from Columbus which was seated in the balcony room at the back of the hall. Every number they played was encored, and even then the dancers weren't satisfied.

The large number of students home from school with their young enthusiasm made the affair seem quite collegiate.

After mid-night refreshments were served at the long tables on the ground floor of the home. On this committee were Senet Cryder, chairman, Dave Dunlap, Frank Bennett, George Weffer, Charles Weaver and John Walters. On the reception committee were Charles May, C. E. Groce, D. V. Courtright and Fred Pickardt.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Jeanette Scott, Miss Jean Merrill, Miss Mary Culp, Miss Wilhemina Dunn and Oscar Carlin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Short, Mr. Edward Coyle of Columbus; Miss Juanita Tefft, of Athens; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morris, of Kingsport, Tenn.; Mrs.

Foster Weldon, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, of Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Unker of Madison, Indiana; Mrs. George Connelly, of Cleveland; Mrs. Edward Groom of Rochester, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Friedman, of Lancaster; Frank Groom of Columbus; Dr. and Mrs. John Dutro, of Groveport and Miss Effie Anderson, of Williamsport.

Afternoon Party
Miss Marguerite Barnhill was hostess to a charming little afternoon party Thursday at her home on North Court street. Her guests were Miss Elizabeth Ritt, Miss Isabelle Ritt, Miss Josephine Peters, Miss Kathryn Sanders, Miss Sarah Haswell, Miss Hazel Palm and Dorothy Bowers.

Newlyweds at Home
The marriage of Miss Iva Smith, daughter of Mr. Sherman Smith, of London and Mr. Ralph Metzger, of Kingston, took place on Dec. 15. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Curtis E. Fields at the Presbyterian manse in London. Mr. and Mrs. Metzger are now at home in Kingston where Mr. Metzger is a salesman for the Mercer Oil Co.

Parsonage Wedding
The Rev. Franklin McElfresh married Froude Sounders, of Huntington, West Virginia, and Miss Blanche Mason, of Circleville, Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Methodist parsonage on North Pickaway street.

Guests for Dinner

At Sewing Party
Mrs. G. S. Corne and Mrs. Will Avis attended a sewing party Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Emma May and sister, Miss Bush, in Kingston.

Entertain Club
Mrs. Harry G. Stevenson, Mrs. George Steele and Mrs. Florence Steele were hostesses on Thursday at Mrs. Stevenson's home on Pinckney street to the members of their thimble club. The nature of the affair was a noon luncheon and a Christmas party, and after lunch there was an interesting exchange of gifts. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in sewing and in visiting.

The members who were present were Mesdames F. E. Barnhill, W. F. Cellar, W. T. Ulm, J. O. Eagleson, Fred Nicholas, Anna Hall, Earl Lutz Channing Vlerebome, Noah Weaver, George Goodchild and Misses Carrie Johnson and Estelle Grimes and the hostesses. Other guests were Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Beryl Stevenson, Mrs. Ralph Stevenson, of Ashville, and Mrs. W. S. Fisher, of Lewis Center.

Honor Alaskan Guest
Mrs. W. P. Poor, of Fairbanks, Alaska, formerly Miss Pauline Neff of Circleville, was the honored guest

TAYLOR MEETS CANZONERI TO-NIGHT

BANTAM KING TO FIGHT AGAIN AT TRAGEDY SCENE

Four Years Ago at Rickard's Garden Bud's Opponent Was Killed in Bout.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Bud Taylor most consistent of all fighters before the public today unless you care to make an exception in the case of Gene Tunney himself and no other, will meet Tony Canzoneri tonight at Madison Square Garden in a ten round bout that will decide two interesting points, one of which bears the aspect of downright drama. It was almost four years ago to the month that Taylor, fists flying and cold gray eyes flashing, knocked Frankie Jerome into that nether state of unconsciousness from which nearly every victim emerges. Frankie didn't. He died that night in the Bellevue hospital.

For four years, Taylor has gone right on fighting the best and the worst in all sections of the land, but fought none of them in the Garden ring. Tonight, he will return to the auspices under which the tragedy was enacted, altho another garden and another ring since has risen to replace the old.

Perhaps Taylor had other reasons for not appearing at the club which witnessed the first of two fatal finishes in which he has been an innocent principal. The other resulted in the death of Clever Sencio, Filipino, and the writer feels certain that Taylor never returned to fight again at the scene of that tragedy. Somehow, too, I suspect that Taylor's avoidance of the garden was equally intentional.

But they finally are getting back

there tonight and I, among many thousands, am anxious to see just how he comports himself. My guess is that Taylor, an unimaginative young man with remarkable nerve control, will do it well.

Apparently, however, the gamblers are not so certain of this point. They have made Canzoneri a 7 to 5 favorite in the betting quite regardless of the fact that Taylor already holds a decision over Tony and has fought one draw with him in preceding engagements. Tony had to make weight the first two times; he won't tonight. Maybe that accounts for the odds.

Handicapping and form sheets, however, should make Bud no worse than an even money bet, so I must assume that his return to the club he has so obviously avoided has also influenced the odds.

In other words, local gamblers are getting psychological and all I have to say is that they were tough enough in the first place.

May Clear Middle

Speaking of the first place recalls the fact that I mentioned a second point, hitherto unaccounted for. It is that the Taylor-Canzoneri match will proceed some distance in un-muddling the featherweight championship muddle. Taylor already is bantamweight champion in every where they insist on thinking first and talking afterward. He pretty thoroughly can establish a claim to the featherweight title by beating Canzoneri; in fact, that goes for both of the principles.

Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, happens to be in with a prior claim, but this happens to be boxing, NOT gold mining, and so Benjamin really cannot hope to get anywhere unless he sees fit to dispose of tonight's survivor. Benjamin, I understand, is a bit miffed at the local commission and may NOT care to play in our back yard but if they show him the money and the unqualified title, he ought to be nice.

In any event, it begins to look as though the featherweight class soon will have a real leader and tonight's work, if NOT actually starting the ball rolling, at least will give it a first class nudge on the stitches.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

A review of the racing season shows that 1927 was not a particularly good year for the American turf.

Ralph Heinzen writes from Paris that it was a poor year in France also.

American race fans, who occasionally have had cause to complain of small fields will be interested to know, however, that the principal complaint on the Continent concerns a glut of thoroughbreds.

"Horse racing in France," he says, "is beginning to suffer from a glut of horses, and backers and trainers agree that unless hundreds are taken to the French butchers each year from now on the sport will be crushed out of existence beneath a weight of numbers."

"Looking back on the racing season in the Paris region, which closed Dec. 15, it appears that although there was a mass of thoroughbred material, only two real racers stood out.

They were Martinez de Hoz's Talisman and the Moulins stable's Grand Prix de Paris winner, Fiterari.

"Although the calendar of the Paris season now runs over ten months, it is not long enough to provide for all the horses in training. Each year the number of thoroughbreds increases, so that soon there will be 200,000 horses pawing for places on the French turf.

"Entries were so numerous at Maisons-Laffitte, a training center favored by English stables on the Continent, that many races during the season drew 35 or 40 starters. In one afternoon at that track it was not uncommon to have 180 or more horses entered for the six events.

"These bulky fields hamper and delay the starts and often as many as 10 horses are left at the post.

"As the favorite is quite likely to be boxed in such a mob of horses, betting in the mutuel machines has fallen off considerably, and the authorities are disturbed. As for the bettors, they feel they do not get a fair run for their money."

In the United States, more horses carried colors on the Jockey Club tracks than in the past ten years. The total, however, was only 1,570, which gives some idea of the comparison between the number of French and American horses.

The two-year olds of 1927 established three new track records in the United States, but the other ages produced no startling performances.

DELANEY OFFERED CHOICE OF BOUTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 — (INS) — Promoter Tex Rickard has offered Jack Delaney his choice of a bout with either Johnny Risko or Napoleon Jack Dorval in the heavyweight elimination tournament. The winner of this match will be signed to meet the supervisor of the Tom Heeney-Jack Sharkey scrap next month.

The ultimate survivor will get a crack at Jack Dempsey or at Gene Tunney if Dempsey decides not to return to the ring.

GIVE 50th WEDDING PARTY

LONDON, O., Dec. 30 — Mr. and Mrs. James E. Duffey of South Charleston celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Monday. One hundred friends and relatives were invited. Mr. and Mrs. Duffey are the same age and their birthdays occur on the same date in October.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

DUNLOP CITY

Throughout the world the productive Dunlop properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

WITH all its vast area, Washington, D.C., occupies but 39,680 acres.

Preference for Dunlop Tires has caused Dunlop to grow so that now, including the greatest of all Dunlop plants at Buffalo, N. Y., Dunlop occupies a productive area of over 100,000 acres. Over 22,000,000 Dunlop Tires are now running. The service that they give is both the cause and result of Dunlop's magnitude.

Tallyrand said, "There is one person wiser than Anybody, and that is Everybody." Practically everybody agrees that Dunlop Tires are best. Put them on your car and prove it to yourself.

NEW YEAR CALLS

ONE of the traditional features of New Year's Day in many cities, has been the custom of making social calls. In high society circles, the devotees of fashion would make the rounds of many homes of the elect, and exchange their suave compliments.

Probably the enjoyment of the society of their friends was much accentuated in those days, by the moisture of the occasion, with a tendency to exuberant hilarity that went to excess in many cases.

The idea back of the New Year calling custom was quite a pretty one, that people might well start the new period of time by meeting their friends. It gave a happy start on the new year, and helped people to feel hopeful and cheerful.

Today a great many people rebel at the custom of making social calls. They get their social life in different ways. Perhaps they do not cultivate their social natures sufficiently. It might do them good to get out on January 1, and exchange the greetings of the day.

SHAW ON THE RAMPAGE

GEORGE Bernard Shaw in his time has been a powerful and a wise and witty dramatist. He has amused and educated a whole world of readers and theater-goers. The wild, untamable Irishman with the gray beard has become a famous figure. But there are times when G. B. S. goes off the track.

One such flagrant instance occurred recently when he criticized his motherland and cynically said the next time Irishmen came to the United States to ask for funds to feed and clothe Irish poor, they should be sent back empty-handed. His thesis was that Ireland was rich but was a professional beggar. She could well look after her own poor.

But the poverty and want in the slums of Dublin is very genuine. The distress and misery in many a cabin in the west of Ireland is something not pretty to contemplate. And Irishmen from Ireland do not gladly come to America hat in hand. They are a proud and a gallant race and they would not beg the help of others if they really were able to take care of their own.

WINNING OUT OF TOWN TRADE

THERE is a sharp competition now between town centers like Circleville to get their share of patronage from people living in near by localities, and to keep it from going elsewhere. It is a race to see which shall give the best prices and service. Communities like ours stand a good chance to win out, because the expense of distribution is not so heavy as in large cities. It costs less to operate a store in a community like ours.

This competition call not merely for enterprise and advertising, but all employees of these stores need to feel that their success depends on their own efforts. If they are working hard to extend the trade of their employers, they will benefit by the increase of business.

ADVERTISING TODAY

ADVERTISING is today the mightiest factor in the business world. It is a business-builder, with a potency that goes beyond human desire. It is something more than a "runner" knocking at the door of the consumer—something more than mere salesmanship-on-paper. It is a positive, creative force in business. It builds factories, sky-scrapers and railroads. It makes two blades of grass where only one grew before. It multiplies human desires. It furnishes excuse to timorous and hesitating ones for possessing the things which under former conditions they could easily get along without.

The human mind is so constructed that it is appreciably affected by repetition—and, after all, advertising is only repetition.

TOO MUCH SLEEP

PROFESSOR F. A. Moss of George Washington University says we sleep too much, losing thereby valuable time in which we might increase productivity. He urges that the eight-hour standard be reduced to six hours.

If Dr. Moss would have us devote that extra two hours every day to directly increasing our productivity, we doubt the wisdom of his suggestion. What we need to increase or improve, according to our view, is that old-fashioned quality that seems to have waned a great deal.

A dozen workmen go out now and put up a house in a couple of days. It used to take weeks, but the house was well built, and it stood. The house of course is but one example of a thousand that could be cited. Modern speed standards hasten the work, but often leave jagged edges. Two hours a day more devoted to improving the quality and durability of the things we produce might be worthy.

If a man can sit up a little longer and figure out ways by which a few dollars a day can be saved in production, he is regarded as a valuable man by his company. But if he brings in plans that call for less profit but an improved product, generally he is called upon the carpet and asked to show cause.

We seem to be producing everywhere rapidly enough, but not good enough. This even applies to the writing of editorials, such as this, which probably would have been a better editorial if it had been worked upon for just a few more minutes.

WHY LINDBERGH WON MEXICO

THE INTENSE enthusiasm with which Col. Lindbergh was received in Mexico was due largely to admiration of his personality and heroism, but there was more in it than that. He was performing a notable service to the two nations, which he undertook not for any hope of reward, but as his contribution to the cause of better international understanding.

His flight should also be of practical service which the Mexican people will appreciate. His experience helps determine what is the best route for regular flights between these two capitals, which is destined to be one of the important pathways of the air. Some day before long, planes will be flying daily between Washington and Mexico City, to the great advantage of both countries. His adventure brings this day much nearer.

BEAUTY A TOWN ASSET

IN SPITE of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live it is evident to any observer that the American people are rapidly developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is not confined to the wealthier classes, but extends to the great masses in the towns and villages and in the rural districts.

New towns and new sections of the older ones are being laid out with wider streets, with provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally.

Recently built houses show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net result of all these modern developments is beauty. And aside from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, it pays in dollars and cents.

Beautiful cities, towns and villages attract people. They attract permanent residents, they attract tourists, and they attract trade. It is natural that a person selecting a trading center will choose a town that is beautiful and clean in preference to one that is unsightly and dirty, if other conditions are anyway near equal.

PLEASELY PLUMP

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD, producer of girl-shows extraordinary, recently advertised for forty "pleasingly plump" misses for his pageants of pulchritude.

The secretary of agriculture for Maine, who is behind a campaign to prove to the women of New England that potatoes are not fattening, should read this and change his balhyoo.

We offer him the slogan, free: "Put On Pleasing Pounds With Potatoes," and suggest that he print it in large type alongside Mr. Ziegfeld's advertisement. That's one way to sell all the potatoes Maine can produce, and Iowa farms which have been put to growing wheat soon would be fine potato fields.

The fad of thin, shadowy ladies has been traced by some historian back to the movie edict a few years ago, threatening decimation from the payroll of chocolate-fed queens whose dresses puckered up a bit about the buttons. Flesh at once became abhorrent to the feminine young folk from Maine to California.

Now, perhaps the flappers who have been bolting down a pickle and a leaf of lettuce and calling it lunch will start eating their meals again.

The RAMBLER

By NORMAN W. RALSTON.

THE OLD THINGS

I'll sing
Of the
Old days,
Of things now gone
By,
All through these
Cold days
The dark, sombre
Sky
Recalls to my dull
Mind,
The old winding road
Where I'll walk
With my kind
And carry my load;
Here are the old
Gates
Bent now and worn,
Discarded ice
Skates,
Toys look forlorn—
The old moon is
Shining
As brightly for me,
The old thoughts
Are pining,
The stars blink in
Glee;
And there is the Old friend
Smiling the same,
Faithful from
Start to end—
What is his name?—
Thus do the
Old things
Come to me now
Though Father Time's
Wings
Have brushed my
Brow—

And what we mean to say
Is
Don't toss the old
Friends
On Life's great heap
Or when the road
Bends
Your soul will weep;
Isn't the old moon,
Shining the same
Though you're at Life's
Noon,
Though you have Fame?
Sing of the old days,
When your feet
Would wend
Down by the old ways—
Don't let them
End!

No man is half as bad as his mother-in-law sometimes thinks he is.

Everything in Life has its sorrows. Even the radio had to have static.

The remarkable thing about this age is that you can see as much in one year as they used to in twenty.

DAY AND NIGHT

The night brings
Sorrow to my soul
The day, achievement
And my goal.

The first non-stop affair was probably, judging from some women we have known, a non-stop talking contest.

WOMEN

Starving down her figure—
Jacking up her face!
Woman's surely running
Time a merry race!
—Washington Times.

Chasing to the barbers
To shave her neck and face;
Wearing knickerbockers—
She gives mere man a chase.
—Adam Breede, Hastings, Neb., Tribune.

Wearing brother's sweater,
Following his clan;
Smoking cigs and drinking,
Soon she'll be a man.

Sometimes it seems to us there is no sense in being sensible.

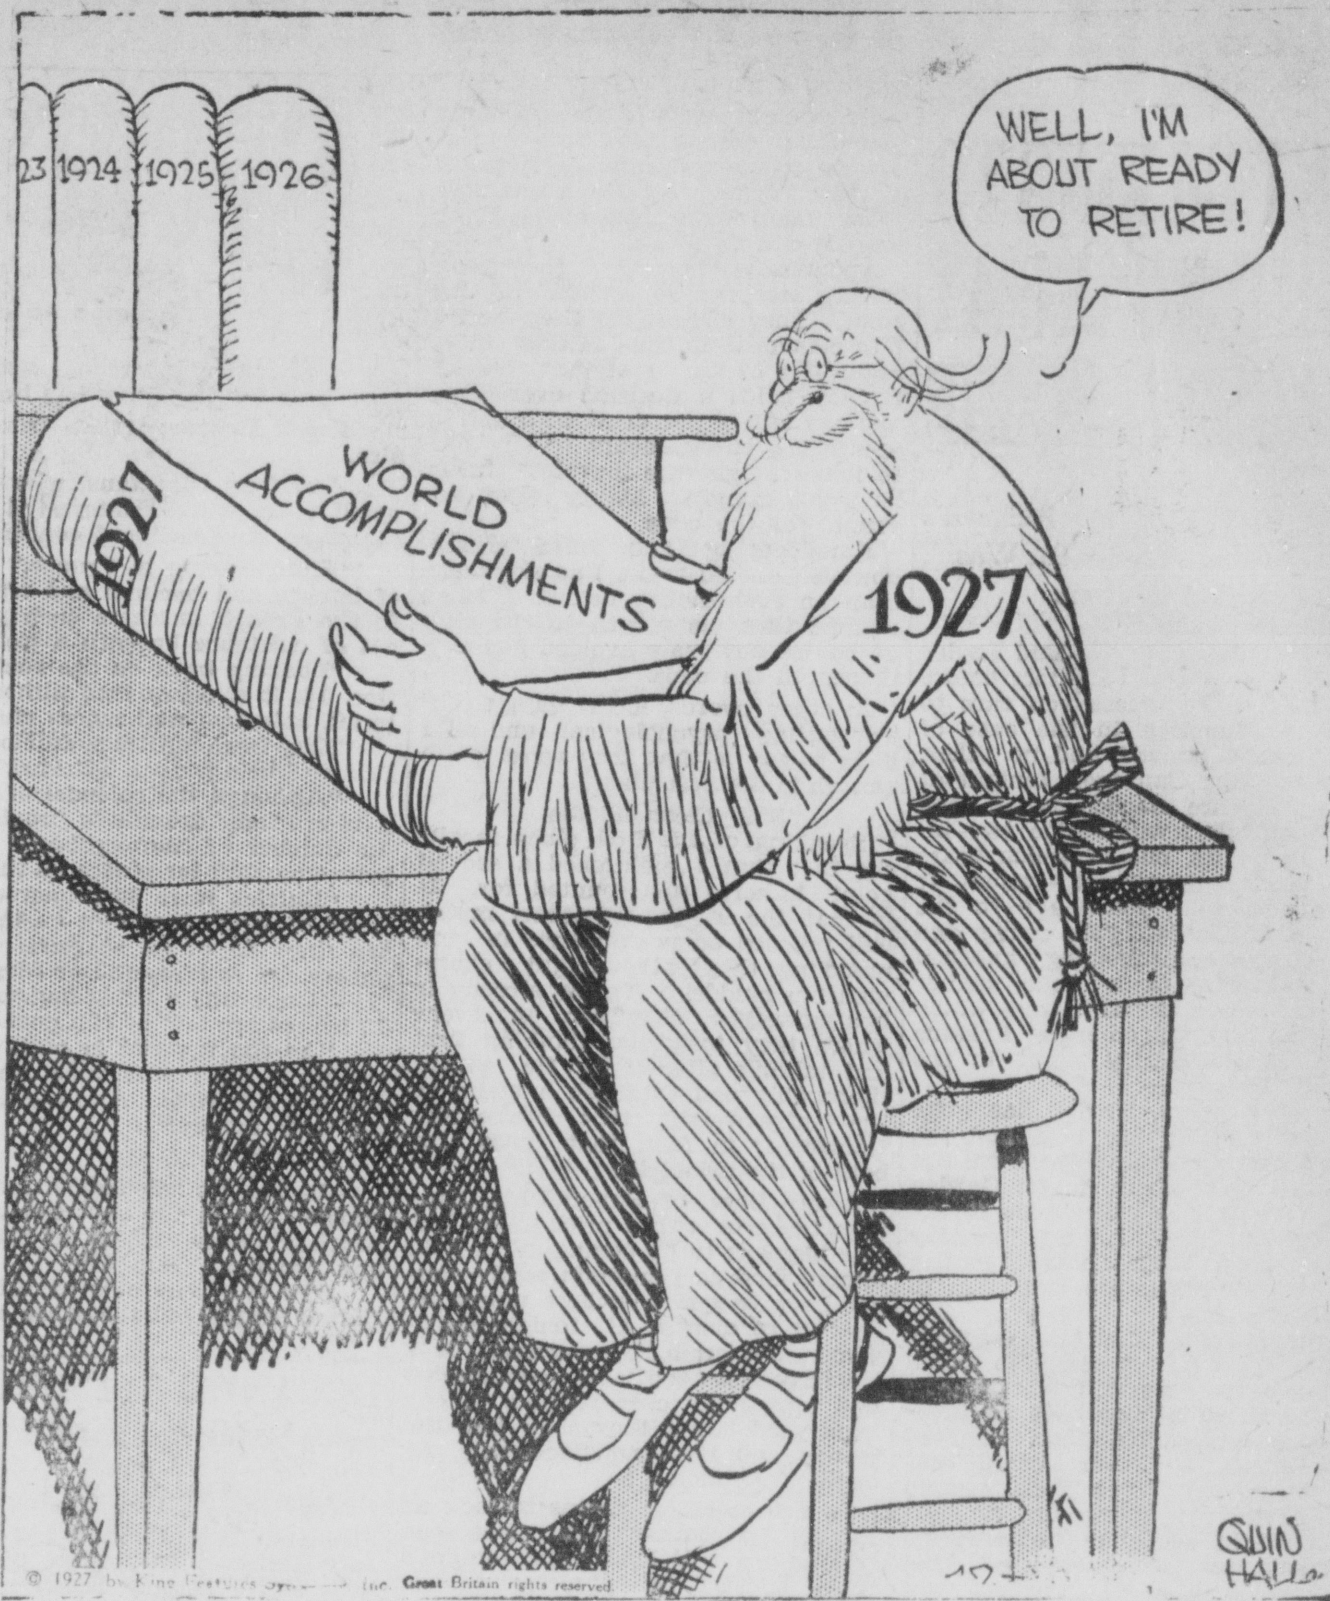

About the only occasion, says Sam Hill in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a woman thinks doesn't call for gloves is when she is handling her husband. Then it calls for a rolling pin, Sam, or the prize family plates.

If we catch Bob Ryder with a red necktie on nowadays, we won't criticize, or laugh, but will extend our sympathy, and say, "Well, Bob, we didn't suppose she dominated you that much, but a man has to wear her Christmas gift for a time, we guess."

Danger Signals of Possible Cancer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

CANCER is our most dreadful disease. It is dreadful because it is neglected in the beginning. It need not be dreadful if taken in time.

What are the signs of cancer—the danger signals? I saw them briefly stated and well stated quite recently. These are the chief things to heed: Any lump, especially in the breast. Any irregular bleeding or discharge. Any sore that does not heal.

Persistent indigestion with loss of weight. You might have one or all of these symptoms and not have cancer. You need not be scared to death if you have one of them, but, if you are wise, you will find out why you have it. No matter if the cause of your symptom is a trifling thing, it should be gotten rid of anyhow.

The chief cause for neglect of one of these signals is not failure of the victim to realize it. It is the terrible fear that an operation may be needed.

It may well be that an operation will not be needed. Medical treatment may be the only thing required.

I have heard thousands of people say: "I wouldn't have an operation. But it isn't so that you would die."

first. Even though you had cancer, long before it came time to die you would be demanding and crying for an operation. It is human nature to want to live.

It is natural, too, to put off an operation just as long as possible. But that isn't sensible, is it? If by any chance the suspicious symptom is really a sign of cancer and of a type requiring operation, your own good judgment says that the quicker it is performed, the greater is the chance of complete success.

You dread an operation because you think it will hurt. Perhaps you are afraid of the anesthetic. I had been operating many years before I ever had any reason to take an anesthetic. I am frank to confess I did not relish the prospect of taking it myself. But after having had an anesthetic and repeating the experience a couple of times, I am prepared to say it is not at all an unpleasant experience. If I were told tomorrow that I must take an anesthetic and have an operation I wouldn't dread it a bit. Experience has taught me it isn't dreadful at all—not half as bad as having a tooth extracted.

It is a neglected sore or lump or bleeding place that is dangerous. The place in question "breaks down"—it becomes cancerous. In the beginning it may be of no consequence and be easily overcome. That is the time to give it attention.

Don't keep your suspicions to yourself. Share it at once with your family doctor. In all probability he will laugh at your fears. But, I beg of you, don't neglect these danger signals.

Answers to Health Queries
W. E. P. Q.—Is an operation the only cure for a fistula?

A.—Yes.

W. Q.—I am a young man of 24 troubled with hard and rapid beating of the heart on the least exertion. I chew tobacco. Should I refrain? I am also bothered with pains in the back of neck and shoulder, but they are not severe—what would cause this condition? Should I indulge in athletics?

A.—May be due to nervousness, indigestion, or there may be some slight abnormality of the heart itself. Examination will determine the necessary treatment. Yes, it often interferes with proper digestion. Neuralgia may be the cause of these pains. Be sure that there is no infection in your system. This would depend upon the result of the examination. If you have a heart condition you should avoid overexertion.

P. R. Q.—Would a person who is subject to sudden attacks of appendicitis always have a tired feeling?
2.—What would cause pains in the left side every time a person bends over.
3.—What would cause bilious headache?
4.—What would cause a raw sensation in the back part of the nose?
5.—What causes a discharging ear?

A.—No. Probably due to auto-intoxication. Avoid poor elimination.
2.—May be due to gases in the system.
3.—Due to faulty diet and poor elimination.
4.—May be due to nasal catarrh. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.
5.—This condition requires medical attention.

HAWAIIAN CHIEFS PLAN 12 AIRPORTS

HONOLULU, T. H.—Dec. 30.—(U. P.)—So firmly do territorial officials believe that Hawaii's future development rests to a large extent on creation and maintenance of adequate air ports that within the very near future 12 landing fields will be available on five islands for use by commercial aviators.

A portion of the fair grounds at Waikiki will be used as an airfield having a central location. Also near Honolulu is the John Rodgers memorial airport which is still under construction.

Outside of Honolulu will be airports on the islands of Kauai, Maui, Hawaii and Molokai.

Army authorities already have indicated that certain fields established in the territory by military aviation officials may be made available for commercial fliers.

It is hoped that the department of commerce and the post office department will encourage establishment of air mail, passenger and express freight lines between the islands.

Encouragement of commercial aviation in the islands rests with the territorial aeronautical commission which has the close cooperation of the territorial land commission.

JACOB WILSON DIES

WESTERN MORALITY CRITICIZED IN CHINA

PEKING, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Western morality, manners and dress were strongly criticized by speakers who addressed a special assembly of the National Normal university in honor of the 19th anniversary of the institution.

Director Mao Peng-hui warned Chinese college women against trying to imitate the civilization of the west and urged them to cling to the "old morality." He described the extraordinary progress made during recent years in the education of Chinese women, but concluded that it would be lost effort if the educated Chinese women persisted in her intention to adopt western ways.

Another speaker said that the education of women in Europe and America had a long tradition and centuries of development.

SURE WAY TO STOP NIGHT COUGHING

A Prescription That Ends Night Coughs in 15 Minutes.

Persistent night coughing is usually due to causes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. A remarkable prescription known as Thoxine, working on an entirely different principle, goes directly to the cause, and is guaranteed to stop the stubbornest cough within 15 minutes. One swallow is all that's needed. If it fails, get your money back. No chloroform or other harmful drugs. Safe for children. Equally good for sore throat, for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. Ask for Thoxine. 35c, 60c and $1.00. Sold by Hamilton & Ryan and all good drug stores. (Adv.)

"Forget it!" said Jake. "I don't want to get killed today. I got some business to fix first. Sargint, I made over my insurance to a aunt an' I'm sore at her now. I want to change my beneficiary. Man, I'd roll over in my grave if I thought she had all that money. Lemme go back and do that an' you can kill me as many times as you want to."

"Nix," said Eadie. "We've got to hunt up some officers. If this outfit once establishes a line, then we can go out, maybe. They've been fighting all day and their officers have all been killed off. Also their nerve must be pretty ragged after seeing their dead so long. They might pull out and go clear back to the jump-off, and then how would we know where the line was when we were asked back at the outfit. Too many explanations to make, Jake." The sergeant reached out of the hole and picked up the captain's pistol. "I may need this before we get through," he remarked.

"Pigeon blood!" exclaimed Jake. "I ain't our fault an' yet there's no way to get out of it. If I don't get killed, me an' the liaison detail parts company right off the minute we get outta range."

"Let's drag," said Eadie, "and see what we can see with the major's nice new glasses. The only way to go out with no questions asked is to get hit." "Not gassed?" suggested Jake. "No, not gassed, you big skull. Didn't you hear that crack, the captain passed about my wound stripe? Don't get gassed, Jake, you'll regret it the rest of your life."

The began to make their way forward again, and Eadie had only taken a few steps when he stumbled against something hard and fell. He got to his feet muttering and began to feel about to see what had tripped him. His hand came in contact with a round cold object, a handle, then a long flat surface. It was the one pounder gun, and as Eadie started on again, his hobnails clanked on the tripod. Of the crew there was no sign. They had abandoned their gun and gone to distant and quieter parts.

CHAPTER V

Lieutenant Connor

The first hour or so of the night Eadie and Jake passed in calling out to men they heard plodding by and asking them if they knew the whereabouts of any battalion or regimental command group. Sometimes the men did not answer, other times they said "No"; at other times they laughed harshly and directed Eadie to find the deepest dugout ten miles back, prophesying that there would be a command group in it.

"These guys are all goin' back," Jake observed finally. "I'm for goin' with 'em."

"Let's wait a little," answered the sergeant. "You'll get just as much shell fire and just as much machine-gun peevie as you will here. I'll give you another lesson in liaison. You see those flares that keep going up? Well, the boche don't shoot those over their rear areas, they go up from the front line. And as long as they don't get any nearer, we're safe from getting gathered in."

"Unhook your ear from them machine guns a minute," continued Jake. "and see what you hear."

"I don't need to," answered the sergeant brusquely.

In the daytime, when a man is hit, the medical personnel or the stretcher bearers can see him, but at night this is not possible. The wounded have a very real fear of being left to die in the darkness and they give voice to their feelings. These men are not a few. After an assault they are strewn like leaves and their voices make quite a clamor.

Neither man spoke for a long time. "That's my big fear," said Eadie finally, "to be badly wounded and left in this God-forsaken country for a day or two. What have you got to eat on you?"

"Hardtack and bully," answered Jake. "Look, why can't you an' me go back to that town an' get in the cellars of it, have supper, sleep, an' come out again at daybreak?"

"Well, I'll tell you," replied the sergeant. "You're not deaf and you must have heard the cracks that every would-be humorist has been passing at me because I went away on a mission up there on the Marne and never came back. Well, they can all go to h—l. My conscience is clear and I've got the old G. O. that says I can wear a wound stripe, but this stuff about gold brick and jawbone wound stripe gets on a man's nerves after a while. This time I don't want anyone to have anything to say."

"I think you're a d—d fool!" replied Jake. "How many men we seen get killed today? Bing! It's done. Look at that captain. He was going to be a brave boy an' not flop for the shell. I'll never get the feel o' his blouse with the blood comin' through the holes in it out o' my hands if I live to a hundred. What's a wound stripe? Sargint, a guy get wounds in this war he'll take the scars of to his grave, an' he don't rate no wound stripe for 'em, either!"

Eadie silently unwound his slicker and overcoat from his shoulder. "It's coming on to rain," he remarked. "Let's go back to that last trench and see what's in it. That crack that doughboy made about finding the staff in a dugout might not be so far off, after all."

A cold drizzle of rain began to fall. The two men stumbled from shell hole to shell hole, working back to the trench system they had crossed earlier in the afternoon. They met many men, all, like themselves, hunting for something. Runners were trying to find companies, distracted machine gunners with their weapons over their shoulders, fell in and out of holes.

"You will note, Jake," remarked Eadie, as a platoon of gunners went thumping by, "that the guns those men are carrying are Hotchkiss and this division that we were with is armed with another type. Hence these gunners are from some other outfit and lost."

"Good luck to 'em," said Jake. "I got troubles o' my own."

"There are worse jobs than ours," said Eadie. "Those guns weigh fifty pounds each and the tripod weighs another fifty. How would you like to lug one all night and then find you were two divisions away from where you belonged?"

"Sargint," replied Jake, "don't go borrowin' trouble. You needn't give me no lectures on liaison nor on nothin'. I'm an ignorant man an' I know it. This stuff takes too many brains. I'm goin' back to drivin' mules or diggin' holes or workin' in the kitchen. It's a whole h—l of a lot easier on the nerves."

The two companions finally found a road, one with high banks, and here they decided to wait for daylight. Eadie contributed a can of hardtack and Jake some bully beef. This, with water from their canteens, made their first meal since the night before. They dared not smoke. Once finished eating, they lay back against the bank and tried to sleep, their feet in the weeds of the ditch, and cold water up to their knees. Eadie managed to sleep at intervals. He was awakened first by a shell bursting. A second time men stringing wire fell over his feet and their started to roll him bodily into the ditch, thinking him a corpse. From the snatches of conversation he heard from time to time he judged that the drive had met with a heavy check, losses had been frightful, units had become hopelessly intermixed, everyone was lost, and many outfits had disappeared entirely.

The sergeant, some time in the early hours, began to dream. He was at home again, somewhere, before an open fire. He reclined in a deep armchair and inhaled the most delightful odors of broiling steak. How warm the fire was! He seemed to be all alone, he and the fire and the steak. He spread his limbs and reveled in the warmth and the red glow of the fire. He began then to awaken, he could feel consciousness returning, but he held to that chair as hard as he could, he gripped the arms desperately to keep himself in that room. It was no use. He woke, though he did not open his eyes. He was still in the ditch, leaning back against the bank, his hands deep in his overcoat pockets, his face upturned to the rain. No fire, no steak. He opened his eyes, feeling a strong inclination to weep. It was quite light, there was a mist of rain over the distant hills, but in the foreground he could see a stretch of plain, ruins, and a hill with brush on the top. Tiny brown figures ran about on this hill and white smoke made a contrast with the gray mist. Some doughboy outfit had made an assault up there at daybreak.

A man groaned heavily at Eadie's feet. "Yuh 'wake yet?" It was Jake. His eyes bloodshot, and a red beard beginning to make an untidy appearance.

"Yeh, I'm awake," answered the sergeant. "I wish I could have slept a little longer."

"Ahhhhh!" groaned Jake again, getting to his feet. "Sargint, I'm still as a poker." He stamped about in the road. "Well, I earned a dollar yesterday an' I'll earn another one today. I'll remark that they'll be the toughest two iron boys I ever made in my life, an' I've made some tough ones."

Eadie got stiffly up from the mud and took out the major's field glasses again.

"We made one good haul yesterday and that's these glasses," he remarked, putting them to his eyes. "It was almost worth coming up here for." He looked around, but the mist and rain made visibility poor.

"You can put them things up," remarked Jake out of the depths of his collar. "I can see trouble with the naked eye. Lookit!" He pointed with his muddy forefinger. In the lee of a little knoll about a hundred yards away was a group of men. They crouched close to the ground, but from time to time one would stand up and look at something with his field glasses. These men were variously dressed; some wore the Mackinaw issued to truck drivers and motor cycle men, one had on a long sheep-skin coat, others wore trench coats, and two the long, old issue slicker or green oilskin. There was a continuous flashing of paper. These were maps being unfolded and folded again to keep the rain off them.

"That's a staff," said Eadie, "and divisional by the size of it. Anyway brigade. Let's go over and bring 'em the good news. They may tell us we can go home."

"Didn't I hear some one say something about being relieved?" muttered Jake. "There's a relief due us now ain't there?"

"Yes," said the sergeant, "but don't bank on it and then you won't be disappointed. Baldy and Short Mack probably started for us after supper last night. They're as certain as pay day. We'll see 'em some time, but God knows when. All we need now is to get permission to go home."

They approached the group of officers and Jake waited while Eadie, going on, picked out the man who seemed the least occupied and asked him who was in command.

"What do you want to know for?" asked the least-occupied man. He was young and trying hard to be military and grow a mustache, but with little apparent success in either direction.

Every head came up at the sound of the young officer's voice.

"Here, who's that?" cried three or four at once. "Who the h—l do you think you are, there, Ducrot? What do you mean by delaying messengers? Here, soldier, what organization are you from?"

"Here, you," called the man in the sheepskin coat, "where's the 151st Brigade P. C.?"

"Do you know where Courlambert farm is?" cried another. A tall man with spectacles arose and walked over to Eadie. "You've been in the fighting, haven't you?" asked he. "Are you a runner? Give me your message if it's for me. I'm in command here. Where did you leave your unit?"

"Sir," said Eadie, saluting, "I'm an artillery man. I'm with the liaison detail."

"Oh! An artillery man!" cried all. Some of them added obscene words expressive of their disgust. The man in spectacles looked at Eadie with distaste.

"What the h—l do you want to bother me for?" he demanded.

in the holdup which resulted in the murder, and named Hunt as his accomplice. The latter is only 16 years old.

Jury Starts Tuesday

The grand jury investigation will begin next Tuesday, the day on which Hickman is scheduled to enter his plea to the charge of kidnaping and murdering the Parker girl.

Beside investigating the Toms murder and several other killings, the grand jury will attempt to find whether Hunt had any connection with the Parker case. They will also inquire into several murders committed in and near Chicago during the period last fall when Hickman was in that city.

It is believed the grand jury investigation also will include questioning of Mrs. Martha M. Driskell, Hunt's step-grandmother, concerning the suicide of A. F. Driskell, Hunt's grandfather, last May. Hickman and Hunt lived for some time with Mrs. Driskell.

Young Hunt was questioned for hours in the District Attorney's office concerning his relations with Hickman. It was understood he stood by his confession, made shortly after his arrest, in which he admitted taking part with Hickman in the Toms hold-up and several other robberies, but absolutely denied any connection with the Parker case.

Gets Time Extension

When arraigned late yesterday before superior judge Carlos Hardy, Hickman was granted an extension of time to answer the kidnaping and murder indictments, on petition of his attorney, Jerome K. Walsh of Kansas City, who told the court he had just arrived in town and would like several days in which to familiarize himself with the case.

SIGNING BONDS FOR FRIENDSHIP IS CONDEMNED

were for another. A person signing a surety bond is bound from the very beginning and everyone who signs it is equally responsible.

A guarantor is one who is secondarily liable.

A slight alteration of a note, the speaker declared, makes it invalid.

Mr. Terwilliger denounced the signing of bonds, declaring that there are bonding houses which should assume the liability and not individuals. The holder of a note hates to get it from the surety, realizing that it is "blood money" and yet this step becomes necessary at times.

Do Not Sign Bonds

Signing a guardian's bond is just as vicious, he said, declaring it "would be a good idea not to sign any bonds."

The attorney said that it would be better for a man to loan his friend money to secure bonding from a surety house, rather than to jeopardize his own property and interests by signing any sort of a bond.

POLICE GRILL HICKMAN'S PAL ABOUT SLAYING

Grand Jury Will Meet on Day of Arraignment to Investigate Other Killings.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30—(INS)—Was Welby Hunt, named as a bandit killer in the latest confession of William Edward Hickman, connected in any way with the kidnaping and murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker?

Investigation along this line was being conducted today, according to Harold L. Davis, chief deputy district attorney. Davis said the facts in the second murder case against young Hickman, who involved his former pal, Hunt, will be placed before the county grand jury promptly.

This is the killing of C. Ivy Toms, Los Angeles druggist, in a holdup on Christmas eve, 1926. Hickman early yesterday confessed to participating (Concluded on Page Eight)

PEDESTRIAN IS HURT SEVERELY IN AUTO MISHAP

James Reichelderfer Struck by Automobile Driven by Asheville Resident.

James Reichelderfer was struck by a Ford touring car Friday noon near the northeast corner of Court and Main streets. Mr. Reichelderfer was crossing the street from the First National bank to the Betz and Son restaurant when he was hit. He was thrown to the street, but was not run over by the car that struck him. He suffered a severe gash on the left side of his head, and both wrists were bruised.

The injured man was removed to the office of Dr. D. V. Courtwright, where he was given surgical treatment and then taken to the City hospital at Chillicothe in the Albaugh Company Invalid car.

Mr. Reichelderfer's injuries are not serious and it is thought that he will be out in a few days.

The Ford was driven by Edward Campbell, who was accompanied by his brother, Henry Campbell. Mr. Campbell is an upholsterer, residing on the Ashbrook farm near Asheville. In speaking of the accident the driver of the car claims he made a left hand turn coming down Court street and turning into East Main street, the red light signal for Main street was up, giving him the right to make the turn. He saw Mr. Reichelderfer walking across the street when he was right on him, and he attempted to turn his car to miss him, but Mr. Reichelderfer turned right with his car and he could not avoid hitting him, Campbell said.

AGED RESIDENT OF KINGSTON SUCCUMBS

Mrs. Catherine Anna Wilkens Dies at Home—Funeral Will Be Sunday.

Mrs. Catherine Anna Wilkens, 76, a widely known resident of Kingston, died at her home on Main street at 3:55 p. m. Thursday following an illness from the infirmities of old age.

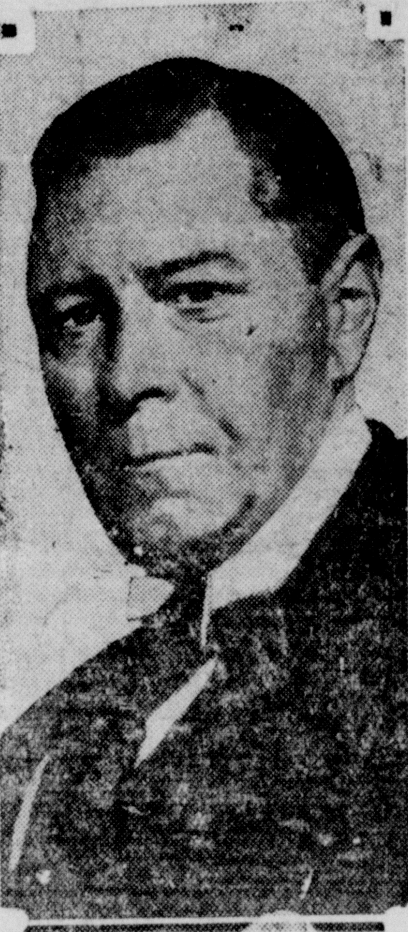

Mrs. Wilkens was born in Pickaway county on Nov. 11, 1851, the daughter of Jeremiah and Mary Dodd. She was twice married, first to Conrad Miller, who died in 1891 and then to Wesley H. Wilkens, a Civil War veteran, who died 15 years ago. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist church.

Surviving her are four children, who are: John Miller, Mrs. Minnie Foley, and Mrs. Dora Miller, all of Kingston, and Mrs. Cora Dilts, of Circleville.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Kingston Methodist church, the Rev. Floyd Webb officiating. Burial will be in Salem cemetery in charge of the W. H. Albaugh company.

"Bob" Bates, After 35 Years on Herald, Leaves Its Employ to Enter Own Shop

Thirty-five years ago, or to be exact, on July 5, 1892, Robert H. Bates, better known as "Bob" Bates, came to Circleville from Portsmouth, O., and entered the office of his brother-in-law, Walter C. Darst, to learn the trade of a printer. After doing all the jobs around a newspaper office from devil to compositor and make-up, he chose to learn the art of running a linotype, which has revolutionized the printing business.

Since the days of Gutenberg, type was set by hand, but now the linotype takes the place of five compositors, and the machine is so complex that the inventor worked on it twelve years before the machine was complete, and ready to be placed on the market. The inventor became a raving maniac, and died in an asylum, never reaping the benefits of his life work.

Mr. Bates not only mastered the

LONE EAGLE AT THIRD CAPITAL IN LONG TOUR

American Ambassador of Good Will Plans to Leave Saturday for Salvador.

BELIZE, British Honduras, Dec. 30 (UP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at 9:45 a. m. local time (10:45 a. m. Eastern Standard time).

He had started from Aurora Airdome, Guatemala City at 6:21 a. m. Guatemala time, to continue his Central American good will tour.

The 250-mile trip over volcanoes and jungle took three hours and 24 minutes.

Lindbergh circled the athletic field near the coast in the Spirit of St. Louis for a few minutes before deciding he could make the landing. He had been told it might be impossible to land there.

But the weather favored him. A clear sky with a sun beating down gave him confidence and he swooped down easily, landing gracefully.

BOY, AUTO VICTIM, TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

John McGinnis Suffering From Blood Tumor, X-ray Examination Reveals.

Complications arising from head injuries which he received when struck by an automobile and thrown to the pavement on his head has caused the removal to Grant hospital of John McGinnis, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGinnis of North Court street.

It was feared by the attending physician, Dr. O. H. Dunton, that the boy's skull had been fractured, but an X-ray examination by Dr. J. M. Baldwin revealed that a blood tumor had formed between the boy's scalp and his skull.

It was decided not to operate, the physicians deciding that nature will effect the cure. The lad is now at his father's home.

COAST GUARD BOAT SINKS AFTER CRASH

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(INS)—Twenty-six men comprising the crew of the coast guard cutter Rush, which was sunk in Ambrose Channel late last night in a collision with the Standard Oil Company tanker J. A. Moffett, Jr., were brought ashore safely early today by the crews of two other cutters.

The tanker, bound for Corpus Christi, Texas, was struck by the Rush in the fog. The cutter sank rapidly and the crew took to the boats.

Bridge Builders Complete Last Of Railroad's Spans

David Elliott and his bridge construction gang, who have been here since May 5, constructing steel overhead bridges for the Bethlehem Steel company have finished the last bridge, the overhead on the Hays road, which leads from Shadeville to Groveport. This bridge was the longest on the division, nearly five hundred feet long. It took seven spans to carry the overhead structure over the roadways, as they are far apart at this point.

The bridge construction on the C. and O., in this county alone done by the Bethlehem Steel Company will run in cost up to a million dollars. The bridges are the best that could be built for the money so it is claimed cost was not considered, as the company desired the most substantial bridges they could get to withstand the heavy traffic.

GEORGE SMITH DIES FOLLOWING HUNTING TRIP

Retired Farmer of Circleville Succumbs to Apoplexy After Sudden Attack.

Death accompanied George Smith, 68, retired farmer, of 500 East Main street, Thursday as he was returning to his home from a hunting trip when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy to which he succumbed at 7 p. m.

Mr. Smith had been out hunting the major portion of the day, and while returning home, he was overcome with severe pains in his side. He drove his car to the side of the Williamsport pike, just west of the river bridge.

Motorists Assist Him

Passing motorists saw his condition and assisted in removing him to his home. Dr. Holman was called. Mr. Smith grew rapidly worse and he became unconscious, dying a short time later.

Mr. Smith was born at New Holland, Jan. 30, 1859, the son of George and Elizabeth Crabbe Smith.

He married Miss Margaret Gephart in this city, Oct. 2, 1888. His wife and three sons survive. The sons are: Charles H., Earl A., and George Ralph Smith.

Of his immediate family, three sisters and a brother are living. They are: Mrs. George Try, of this city; Mrs. Ida Hillsheimer, of Springfield; Miss Ada Smith, of Toledo, and Howard Smith, of Bainbridge.

U. B. Church Member

Mr. Smith was a member of the United Brethren church, and socially a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

The funeral services will be conducted at the home at 10 a. m., Monday. The Rev. S. W. Hiles will officiate.

The pallbearers will include three sons, Charles H. Smith, Earl A. Smith and G. Ralph Smith and Harold O. Grant, S. C. Grant and H. S. Leist.

Interment will be in Forest cemetery in charge of W. H. Albaugh company.

LICENSE OFFICE TO BE OPEN HOLIDAYS

Commissioner Hedges Will Aid Auto Owners in Getting Their 1928 Plates.

On account of the unusual conditions set up by the fact that New Year's Day falls on Sunday and the general observance of Monday as a holiday, Deputy Commissioner B. T. Hedges has made arrangements to furnish plates to all those whom the police stop and order not to move cars until 1928 plates are secured.

The office will be open Sunday and Monday for the accommodation of owners of motor vehicles, who have not yet secured license plates. This county has nearly 7000 motor vehicles, and only half of this number has secured license plates.

Wife Slayer Loses Fight for Liberty in Cincinnati Court Called Dangerous Psychopath.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 30—(INS) George Remus, once the brains of a powerful bootleg king, today was adjudged insane and was ordered sent to the state hospital for the criminally insane at Lima, Ohio.

The finding, handed down by Probate Judge Leuders is the sequel to the killing by Remus of his wife, Augusta Imogene Holmes Remus in Eden park.

Remus accused his wife of a love affair with Franklin Dodge, federal prohibition officer.

Following a trial of five weeks, a jury of 10 men and two women, after deliberating 19 minutes, brought in a verdict of "not guilty on the sole ground of insanity," the only "not guilty" verdict allowed in the charge of Trial Judge Chester Shook.

In committing Remus to the state asylum, Judge Leuders asserted it was only right to confine him there until he can fully establish his sanity as the three physicians who examined the former convict asserted he is a "dangerous psychopath" in that he believes it is right to take a human life.

Remus probably will be taken to Lima immediately to start the new year behind the bars of the asylum.

SIGNING BONDS FOR FRIENDSHIP IS CONDEMNED

Corporations, Not Individuals, Should Shoulder Liability, Rotarians Learn.

Denouncing the signing of surety bonds by individuals for "friendship's sake," Attorney Meeker Terwilliger delivered a fine talk before the Rotarians at their noonday luncheon in the Boggs hotel, Thursday.

Mr. Terwilliger cited the contents of the will of the late Elbert Gary, in which he urged his family and their descendants not to sign any bond or obligation for any other person.

The Circleville attorney showed the legal tangles that result from such an act and how a person's entire estate may become tied up through the signing of such sureties.

The surety bond is at times clearly and with uncertainty outlined by the legislature. Then the Supreme Court, hearing a surety bond case, may make another decision and before this becomes a reality the legislature has met again and amended the law. The decision of four out of seven of the judges on the Supreme bench can regulate a decision.

A surety was defined as one or more persons attempting to be answerable (Concluded on Page Eight)

AUTO DRIVER LOSES OPERATING RIGHTS

Telegrapher Given $100 Fine and 10 Days in Jail After Spree in Car.

J. D. Moore, a telegraph operator of the C. & O. railroad, is in the police station, charged with driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of corn liquor.

He was arrested by Janitor Delong, following a collision with the Ford car of Robert Wolf, which was parked in front of the armory on East Franklin street, and which Mr. Moore succeeded in pulling a wheel off. After the accident, Mr. Moore drove his car into the Chevrolet garage for repairs.

In police court Friday morning, Mr. Moore was found guilty, and was given a fine of $100, the costs, ten days in jail and deprived of running or operating his car for thirty days, which is really only twenty days, as he will be a guest of the city for ten days.

LONDON COMES TO STRAPHANGER'S AID

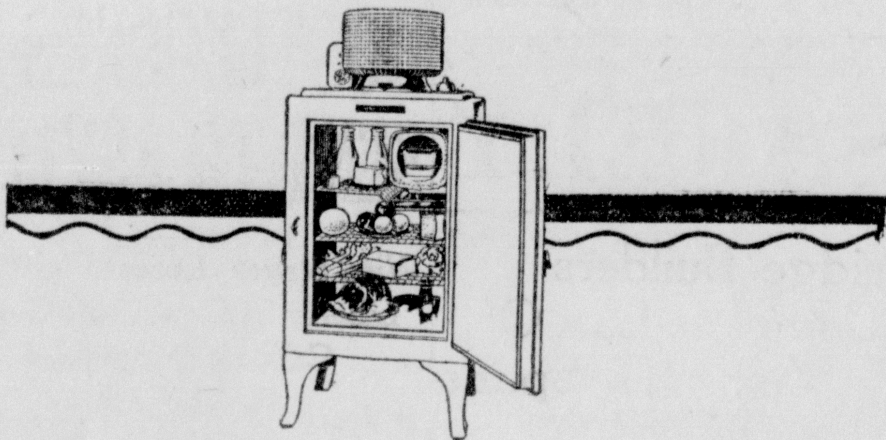

LONDON, Dec. 30—(UP)—In an attempt to obviate strap-hanging and other discomforts on the subway, the London Underground Railway combine has decided to spend $12,500,000 on improvements throughout the whole system. The entire rolling stock of the many railways in the Combine will be renewed or renovated and power stations will be extended and modernized.

Among the improvements on the trains will be greater seating capacity, increased speed, improved ventilation and lighting, greater comfort generally and bigger trains.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

Winter refrigeration is vital, too

It's just as important to have proper refrigeration in December as it is in July. Kitchens are quite as warm in winter. And foods put out-of-doors are very likely to be spoiled by the killing chill of the colder days.

The General Electric is the simple, efficient, quiet refrigerator that gives you perfect refrigeration all year round... no matter how warm your kitchen or how cold the weather. Come in today and see the various models in operation.

CRIMINOLOGISTS ANALYZE HICKMAN'S FACE

FORD MAKES SURVEY

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 30—New evidence that Henry Ford's "intensive survey" in connection with the needs of building a new line for his D. T. & I. Railroad, is going on without a letup, came to light here when an official inquiry was received from his Detroit office asking for a bound copy of a detailed map showing a plat of towns, farms, roads, etc. in Ross county.

Good Heart Can Rout Hawks of Adversity

What an unimportant trifle may often change the course of a man's life!

Once I was going thoughtfully along the highway. My soul was weighted down by heavy forebodings. I was overcome with despondency.

I raised my head... straight before me ran the road between two stiff rows of poplars. And across the road, about ten paces in front of me, were hopping in single file a family of sparrows, full of life, merriment and courage.

One, in particular, distinguished himself by his bold, sideways hoppings; he stuck out his little breast, and twittered as bravely as if he did not fear the devil himself. A true conqueror!

Meanwhile a hawk circled overhead, whose destiny it was, perhaps, to devour this very hero.

I looked, was forced to laugh, and regained my self-possession. My gloomy thoughts had vanished; I felt again courage, energy and life.

A hawk may be circling over me; but the devil take!—let's keep a good heart!—From Turgenev's Poems in Prose."

GREY'S "NEVADA" IS SPLENDID PICTURE

One type of picture, typically American and immensely popular, can be made only in America—and that is the Western drama. America and all the rest of the world loves this type of adventurous screen story. The dean of Western writers is Zane Grey whose name is famous the globe around, and his latest romantic tale for the screen "Nevada" had its premiere Thursday at the Metropolitan theater.

Paramount is to be congratulated upon its monopoly of the Zane Grey stories and the manner in which these stories are filmed.

"Nevada" like its fore-runners, is faithful to the West. It has all the southwest frontier country in the days of the cattle barons, the days of two-gun men, brave sheriffs, picturesque cowboys, villainous cattle rustlers and lovely heroines.

Eyesight of Snakes

The milky appearance of the eyes of a snake shortly before the slough is cast is due to the separation of the outer layer of epidermis from the cornea, resulting in impaired vision. This gives rise to various superstitions regarding snakes going blind during the dog days of late summer.

MILITARY MEN FACE NEW YEAR FEARING WAR

Three Hundred Thousand More Soldiers Under Arms in Central Europe.

BY ALFRED TYRNAUER
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

VIENNA, Dec. 30—Central Europe, "mother of wars," has taken a new year's inventory of her military prospects for the future and finds that there are 300,000 more men under arms at the beginning of 1928 than there were just before the outbreak of the great war in 1914. It was in 1914 that the "militarism of Austro-Hungary" plunged Europe into armed conflict.

Throughout the Balkans, Poland and Czechoslovakia sober-minded men regard 1928 with anxiety. Not the least of their worries is the bristling line of bayonets which stretches from the Baltic in the north to the Black Sea in the south.

Though six of the "heirs" to the old Austro-Hungarian dual monarchy are weaker financially than was Franz Josef's old empire, they are keeping up standing armies totaling 385,000 men against the 505,000 maintained by Austria-Hungary, Roumania and Serbia in 1914.

Official statistics compiled by Austrian authorities show the following armies in central Europe:

Czechoslovakia—160,000.
Jugoslavia—120,000.
Roumania—210,000.
Hungary and Austria—75,000.

The peace strength of the Austro-Hungarian army before the war was 420,000, and that of Roumania and Serbia, 130,000 making a total of 550,000.

In addition to the 835,000 soldiers constantly under arms, the six states of central Europe have a host of unofficial armed organizations and military police estimated at more than 1,500,000.

Chinaman Carried Off Maiden of His Choice

"Lah-bah," or the "twelfth moon eighth day" is always lucky for marriages. Poor people of the Anhui province in China can be sure of an auspicious day without going to the expense of consulting the fortune-tellers.

This year in the town of Liuanchow there was a novel marriage procession. A young man of twenty-two wanted his bride, but her parents are said to have thought him too poor for the girl and demanded a sum of money which they thought would end in the match being broken off. Friends suggested he should abduct the girl; so on the auspicious "eighth" he and a few friends went to the girl's home, and they were in such force as to carry the day. To prevent anything like lawlessness the bride and groom were bound together back to back and the young man was marched off, like the snail, with his house chia li—wife—on his back. The girl had protested she did not want to be his wife, and apparently sulked, but next day things were smoothed over by friends. "But why tie them back to back?" asked one. "Oh, to stop the girl from struggling," said a friend of the groom. In other words it was cave man stuff.—North China Herald.

WOMEN AT LAST VIOLATE LAW OF DAME FASHION

Milliners Condemn Cloche Hats For Ones With Brims, But All in Vain.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30—(INS)—Learn once in a way women have turned down the decrees of fashion.

"Hats are to have brims," said the fashionable milliners a few weeks ago. "The cloche hat is dead—so bad for the hair, you know."

But Eve has refused to abandon the cloche. The vagabond vogue still lives. Woman has refused to be stampeded. Today every second woman is wearing a small hat which is close fitting, and both the cloche and the vagabond, in their up-to-date form, have their adherents everywhere.

The close-fitting pudding basin has gone, or at least only the foundation of it is left. On to that is grafted, as it were, wings, chenille embroidery, fan-shaped side pieces, feather mounts, folds and pleats.

Head embroidery is a favorite form of trimming. Silver beads and cut steel beads, worked in circles, on long lines or squared as a light touch to a dark hat. On a red one with an inch wide upturned brim across the front there are rows of steel beads, one above the other.

Some of the autumn models are: Hats of supple flannel felt have flute-like folds across one side of the brim.

A velvet skull cap has whirled and circles of chenille embroidery standing up from the hat itself.

Softly curled mounts of ostrich feathers rest on each cheek. There are tiny rosettes of silk braid; or delicate touches of gold and silver embroidery, or braid, or even a spray of leaves.

Velvet hats are more elaborate, but they again have the close-fitting skull-like foundation. From them rise high folks of exquisitely soft gauze velvet with its satin-like gleam and its beautiful autumn colorings.

Felt hats have ear pieces. Sometimes they finish in two loose ends of soft pleated felt. Sometimes they are rounded like scallops, or are square and fit closely against the face.

There are hats, too, which have a suede panel of a paler color inserted at either side of the brim. These come right down on the cheeks and are larger than the brim itself.

But no matter what form the decoration takes, nor how high on the crown rise the velvet swathings, it all comes to this in the end—that every second hat preserves the close-fitting outline.

Old Moore's Famous Almanack Sees Catastrophes Ahead In 1928

By J. C. OESTHEICHER

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 30—(INS)—Ceaseless unrest in China, two influenza epidemics, threats of war between the United States and Japan, four disastrous fires or explosions in America and England, two earthquakes, storms, floods and volcanic disturbances, the illness of a member of the British royal family, the death of a famous statesman, a cholera epidemic in India, coal riots in the middle west of the United States, the loss of a warship with many casualties and an abortive attempt to restore to the throne a deposed monarch of central Europe.

These are the main events the world may expect during the year, 1928, according to the predictions of Old Moore's Almanack, one famous handbook which has had a place upon nearly every English library table or bookshelf for generations.

Brighter Outlook

In spite of these impending catastrophes, Old Moore sees a brighter outlook for the world in general during the coming year. Industry is healthy, he sees, but the governments of the world will find themselves beset with worries of many different sorts.

Old Moore is specific in his predictions. About the 18th or April, according to his prophecy, a cinema fire will cause consternation in America and about the same time a hurricane in the middle west will involve further loss of life and property. The coal riots he predicts will occur in September, and they will be prompted by efforts to lessen the power of the unions.

"Mars is hovering over America and Japan," Old Moore declares in his predictions for February. Throughout the almanack this sentence is reiterated; he sees the questions of immigration and naval supremacy precipitating a dispute which threatens to develop into armed conflict.

Of China, Old Moore has much to say, and little of it is optimistic. He sees the Communist influence causing incessant uprisings, with foreign life and property constantly endangered.

Serious fires in London and the Midlands are on the calendar for February, followed by the American motion picture fire in April. October, too, will have its share of disaster, for Old Moore foresees fire or explosions threatening oil wells in America. On the 22nd of October, according to the predictions, a scandal at Geneva will rock the world.

The members of the royal family who is slated for the sick-bed is not identified, but the event will take place early in April, causing widespread anxiety throughout the United Kingdom.

In June, Europe will be thrown into a turmoil by an attempted coup-d'etat to re-seat a deposed monarch on a tottering throne.

September will be a busy month, according to Old Moore, for in that period the famous statesman, American or British, will die, a war vessel will be sunk with a heavy loss of life. China will be embroiled in serious internal difficulties, and the coal riots in the United States will cause great alarm.

Earthquake Seen

March and December will see earthquakes in different parts of the world and August will be the month of a serious financial panic in one of the British colonies. Trouble in China is forecasted specifically in January, February, March, September and November.

But in general, Old Moore concludes the world will be better in the year to come. The average man will look upon a life less in an "eat-drink and be merry" sort of way, and will devote his time to a serious sober attempt to make the New Year a prosperous one.

Wilton Rug

The term "Six Frame Wilton" is used to denote the number of colors that are used in the weaving of a Wilton rug. The word "frame" is used to indicate the wire that is used, over which the threads are woven. Also this frame wire is used in the cutting of the thread so as to give the piled effect of the rug.

MADISON COUNTY PIONEER IS DEAD

LONDON, O., Dec. 30—Lester Bidwell, 78, pioneer Madison county, farmer and business man, is dead following an illness of several years. Gay New Year's Dance Is Given At Elks' Home

The outstanding social event of the holiday season was the dance Thursday night at the Elks' Home which all society folks attended from the hours of nine until three. The floor was crowded all evening with over a hundred couples most of whom were from Circleville. There were also many persons from out of town.

The Elks' hospitality extended by the reception committee at the front door and ending with the last handshake after the "Home Sweet Home" dance, lent a most enjoyable atmosphere to the affair. Subdued lights and a few Christmas decorations added in colors of soft or vivid hues. The splendid music was provided by Burchfield's orchestra from Columbus which was seated in the balcony room at the back of the hall. Every number they played was encored, and even then the dancers weren't satisfied.

The large number of students home from school with their young enthusiasm made the affair seem quite collegiate.

After mid-night refreshments were served at the long tables on the ground floor of the home. On this committee were Senet Cryder, chairman, Dave Dunlap, Frank Bennett, George Weller, Charles Weaver and John Walters. On the reception committee were Charles May, C. E. Groce, D. V. Courtright and Fred Fickard.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Jeanette Scott, Miss Jean Merrill, Miss Mary Culp, Miss Wilhemina Dunn and Oscar Carlin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Short, Mr. Edward Coyle of Columbus; Miss Juanita Tefft, of Athens; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morris, of Kingsport, Tenn.; Mrs.

TAYLOR MEETS CANZONERI TO-NIGHT

BANTAM KING TO FIGHT AGAIN AT TRAGEDY SCENE

Four Years Ago at Rickard's Garden Bud's Opponent Was Killed in Bout.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Bud Taylor most consistent of all fighters before the public today unless you care to make an exception in the case of Gene Tunney himself and no other, will meet Tony Canzoneri tonight at Madison Square Garden in a ten round bout that will decide two interesting points, one of which bears the aspect of downright drama. It was almost four years ago to the month that Taylor, fists flying and cold gray eyes flashing, knocked Frankie Jerome into that nether state of unconsciousness from which nearly every victim emerges. Frankie didn't. He died that night in the Bellevue hospital.

For four years, Taylor has gone right on fighting the best and the worst in all sections of the land, but fought none of them in the Garden ring. Tonight, he will return to the auspices under which the tragedy was enacted, altho another garden and another ring since has risen to replace the old.

Perhaps Taylor had other reasons for not appearing at the club which witnessed the first of two fatal finishes in which he has been an innocent principal. The other resulted in the death of Clever Sencio, Filipino, and the writer feels certain that Taylor never returned to fight again at the scene of that tragedy. Somehow, too, I suspect that Taylor's avoidance of the garden was equally intentional.

But they finally are getting back

there tonight and I, among many thousands, am anxious to see just how he comports himself. My guess is that Taylor, an unimaginative young man with remarkable nerve control, will do it well.

Apparently, however, the gamblers are not so certain of this point. They have made Canzoneri a 7 to 5 favorite in the betting quite regardless of the fact that Taylor already holds a decision over Tony and has fought one draw with him in preceding engagements. Tony had to make weight the first two times; he won't tonight. Maybe that accounts for the odds.

Handicapping and form sheets, however, should make Bud no worse than an even money bet, so I must assume that his return to the club he has so obviously avoided has also influenced the odds.

In other words, local gamblers are getting psychological and all I have to say is that they were tough enough in the first place.

May Clear Middle

Speaking of the first place recalls the fact that I mentioned a second point, hitherto unaccounted for. It is that the Taylor-Canzoneri match will proceed some distance in un-muddling the featherweight championship muddle. Taylor already is bantamweight champion in every where they insist on thinking first and talking afterward. He pretty thoroughly can establish a claim to the featherweight title by beating Canzoneri; in fact, that goes for both of the principals.

Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, happens to be in with a prior claim, but this happens to be boxing, NOT gold mining, and so Benjamin really cannot hope to get anywhere unless he sees fit to dispose of tonight's survivor. Benjamin, I understand, is a bit miffed at the local commission and may NOT care to play in our back yard but if they show him the money and the unqualified title, he ought to be nice.

In any event, it begins to look as though the featherweight class soon will have a real leader and tonight's work, if NOT actually starting the ball rolling, at least will give it a first class nudge on the stitches.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

A review of the racing season shows that 1927 was not a particularly good year for the American turf.

Ralph Heinzen writes from Paris that it was a poor year in France also.

American race fans, who occasionally have had cause to complain of small fields will be interested to know, however, that the principal complaint on the Continent concerns a glut of thoroughbreds.

"Horse racing in France," he says, "is beginning to suffer from a glut of horses, and backers and trainers agree that unless hundreds are taken to the French butchers each year from now on the sport will be crushed out of existence beneath a weight of numbers."

"Looking back on the racing season in the Paris region, which closed Dec. 15, it appears that although there was a mass of thoroughbred material, only two real racers stood out.

They were Martinez de Hoz's Talisman and the Moulines stable's Grand Prix de Paris winner, Fiterari.

"Although the calendar of the Paris season now runs over ten months, it is not long enough to provide for all the horses in training. Each year the number of thoroughbreds increases, so that soon there will be 200,000 horses pawing for places on the French turf.

"Entries were so numerous at Maisons-Laffitte, a training center favored by English stables on the Continent, that many races during the season drew 35 or 40 starters. In one afternoon at that track it was not uncommon to have 180 or more horses entered for the six events.

"These bulky fields hamper and delay the starts and often as many as 10 horses are left at the post.

"As the favorite is quite likely to be boxed in such a mob of horses, betting in the mutuel machines has fallen off considerably, and the authorities are disturbed. As for the bettors, they feel they do not get a fair run for their money."

In the United States, more horses carried colors on the Jockey Club tracks than in the past ten years. The total, however, was only 1,570, which gives some idea of the comparison between the number of French and American horses.

The two-year olds of 1927 established three new track records in the United States, but the other ages produced no startling performances.

DELANEY OFFERED CHOICE OF BOUTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 — (INS) — Promoter Tex Rickard has offered Jack Delaney his choice of a bout with either Johnny Risko or Napoleon Jack Dorval in the heavyweight elimination tournament. The winner of this match will be signed to meet the supervisor of the Tom Heeney-Jack Sharkey scrap next month.

The ultimate survivor will get a crack at Jack Dempsey or at Gene Tunney if Dempsey decides not to return to the ring.

GIVE 50th WEDDING PARTY

WASHINGTON, D.C.

DUNLOP CITY

Throughout the world the productive Dunlop properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

WITH all its vast area, Washington, D.C., occupies but 39,680 acres.

Preference for Dunlop Tires has caused Dunlop to grow so that now, including the greatest of all Dunlop plants at Buffalo, N. Y., Dunlop occupies a productive area of over 100,000 acres. Over 22,000,000 Dunlop Tires are now running. The service that they give is both the cause and result of Dunlop's magnitude.

Tallyrand said, "There is one person wiser than Anybody, and that is Everybody." Practically everybody agrees that Dunlop Tires are best. Put them on your car and prove it to yourself.

NEW YEAR CALLS

ONE of the traditional features of New Year's Day in many cities, has been the custom of making social calls. In high society circles, the devotees of fashion would make the rounds of many homes of the elect, and exchange their suave compliments.

Probably the enjoyment of the society of their friends was much accentuated in those days, by the moisture of the occasion, with a tendency to exuberant hilarity that went to excess in many cases.

The idea back of the New Year calling custom was quite a pretty one, that people might well start the new period of time by meeting their friends. It gave a happy start on the new year, and helped people to feel hopeful and cheerful.

Today a great many people rebel at the custom of making social calls. They get their social life in different ways. Perhaps they do not cultivate their social natures sufficiently. It might do them good to get out on January 1, and exchange the greetings of the day.

SHAW ON THE RAMPAGE

GEORGE Bernard Shaw in his time has been a powerful and a wise and witty dramatist. He has amused and educated a whole world of readers and theater-goers. The wild, untamable Irishman with the gray beard has become a famous figure. But there are times when G. B. S. goes off the track.

One such flagrant instance occurred recently when he criticized his motherland, and cynically said the next time Irishmen came to the United States to ask for funds to feed and clothe the Irish poor, they should be sent back empty-handed. His thesis was that Ireland was rich but was a professional beggar. She could well look after her own poor.

But the poverty and want in the slums of Dublin is very genuine. The distress and misery in many a cabin in the west of Ireland is something not pretty to contemplate. And Irishmen from Ireland do not gladly come to America hat in hand. They are a proud and a gallant race and they would not beg the help of others if they really were able to take care of their own.

WINNING OUT OF TOWN TRADE

THERE is a sharp competition now between town centers like Circleville to get their share of patronage from people living in near by localities, and to keep it from going elsewhere. It is a race to see which shall give the best prices and service. Communities like ours stand a good chance to win out, because the expense of distribution is not so heavy as in large cities. It costs less to operate a store in a community like ours.

This competition call not merely for enterprise and advertising, but all employees of these stores need to feel that their success depends on their own efforts. If they are working hard to extend the trade of their employers, they will benefit by the increase of business.

ADVERTISING TODAY

ADVERTISING is today the mightiest factor in the business world. It is a business-builder, with a potency that goes beyond human desire. It is something more than a "runner" knocking at the door of the consumer—something more than mere salesmanship-on-paper. It is a positive, creative force in business. It builds factories, sky-scrapers and railroads. It makes two blades of grass where only one grew before. It multiplies human desires. It furnishes excuse to timorous and hesitating ones for possessing the things which under former conditions they could easily get along without.

The human mind is so constructed that it is appreciably affected by repetition—and, after all, advertising is only repetition.

TOO MUCH SLEEP

PROFESSOR F. A. Moss of George Washington University says we sleep too much, losing thereby valuable time in which we might increase productivity. He urges that the eight-hour standard be reduced to six hours.

If Dr. Moss would have us devote that extra two hours every day to directly increasing our productivity, we doubt the wisdom of his suggestion. What we need to increase or improve, according to our view, is that old-fashioned quality that seems to have waned a great deal.

A dozen workmen go out now and put up a house in a couple of days. It used to take weeks, but the house was well built, and it stood. The house of course is but one example of a thousand that could be cited. Modern speed standards hasten the work, but often leave jagged edges. Two hours a day more devoted to improving the quality and durability of the things we produce might be worthy.

If a man can sit up a little longer and figure out ways by which a few dollars a day can be saved in production, he is regarded as a valuable man by his company. But if he brings in plans that call for less profit but an improved product, generally he is called upon the carpet and asked to show cause.

We seem to be producing everywhere rapidly enough, but not good enough. This even applies to the writing of editorials, such as this, which probably would have been a better editorial if it had been worked upon for just a few more minutes.

WHY LINDBERGH WON MEXICO

THE INTENSE enthusiasm with which Col. Lindbergh was received in Mexico was due largely to admiration of his personality and heroism, but there was more in it than that. He was performing a notable service to the two nations, which he undertook not for any hope of reward, but as his contribution to the cause of better international understanding.

His flight should also be of practical service which the Mexican people will appreciate. His experience helps determine what is the best route for regular flights between these two capitals, which is destined to be one of the important pathways of the air. Some day before long, planes will be flying daily between Washington and Mexico City, to the great advantage of both countries. His adventure brings this day much nearer.

BEAUTY A TOWN ASSET

IN SPITE of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live it is evident to any observer that the American people are rapidly developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is not confined to the wealthier classes, but extends to the great masses in the towns and villages and in the rural districts.

New towns and new sections of the older ones are being laid out with wider streets, with provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally.

Recently built houses show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net result of all these modern developments is beauty. And aside from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, it pays in dollars and cents.

Beautiful cities, towns and villages attract people. They attract permanent residents, they attract tourists, and they attract trade. It is natural that a person selecting a trading center will choose a town that is beautiful and clean in preference to one that is unsightly and dirty, if other conditions are anyway near equal.

PLEASEINGLY PLUMP

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD, producer of girl-shows extraordinary, recently advertised for forty "pleasingly plump" misses for his pageants of pulchritude.

The secretary of agriculture for Maine, who is behind a campaign to prove to the women of New England that potatoes are not fattening, should read this and change his balhyoo.

We offer him the slogan, free: "Put On Pleasing Pounds With Potatoes," and suggest that he print it in large type alongside Mr. Ziegfeld's advertisement. That's one way to sell all the potatoes Maine can produce, and Iowa farms which have been put to growing wheat soon would be fine potato fields.

The fad of thin, shadowy ladies has been traced by some historian back to the movie edict a few years ago, threatening decimation from the payroll of chocolate-fed queens whose dresses puckered up a bit about the buttons. Flesh at once became abhorrent to the feminine young folk from Maine to California.

Now, perhaps the flappers who have been bolting down a pickle and a leaf of lettuce and calling it lunch will start eating their meals again.

The RAMBLER

THE OLD THINGS

I'll sing
Of the
Old days,
Of things now gone
By.
All through these
Cold days
The dark, sombre
Sky
Recalls to my dull
Mind,
The old winding road
With my kind
And carry my load;
Here are the old
Gates
Bent now and worn,
Discarded ice
Skates,
Toys look forlorn—
The old moon is
Shining
As brightly for me,
The old thoughts
Are pining,
The stars blink in
Glee;
And there is the
Old friend
Smiling the same,
Faithful from
Start to end—
What is his name?—
Thus do the
Old things
Come to me now
Though Father Time's
Wings
Have brushed my
Brow—

And what we mean to say
Is
Don't toss the old
Friends
On Life's great heap
Or when the road
Bends
Your soul will weep;
Isn't the old moon,
Shining the same
Though you're at Life's
Noon,
Though you have Fame?
Sing of the old days,
When your feet
Would wend
Down by the old ways—
Don't let them
End!

No man is half as bad as his mother-in-law sometimes thinks he is.

Everything in Life has its sorrows. Even the radio had to have static.

The remarkable thing about this age is that you can see as much in one year as they used to in twenty.

DAY AND NIGHT

The night brings
Sorrow to my soul
The day, achievement
And my goal.

The first non-stop affair was probably, judging from some women we have known, a non-stop talking contest.

WOMEN

Starving down her figure—
Jacking up her face!
Woman's surely running
Time a merry race!
—Washington Times.

Chasing to the barbers
To shave her neck and face;
Wearing knickerbockers—
She gives mere man a chase.
—Adam Breede, Hastings, Neb., Tribune.

Wearing brother's sweater,
Following his clan;
Smoking cigs and drinking,
Soon she'll be a man.

Sometimes it seems to us there is no sense in being sensible.

About the only occasion, says Sam Hill in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a woman thinks doesn't call for gloves is when she is handling her husband. Then it calls for a rolling pin, Sam, or the prize family plates.

If we catch Bob Ryder with a red necktie on nowadays, we won't criticize, or laugh, but will extend our sympathy, and say, "Well, Bob, we didn't suppose she domineered you that much, but a man has to wear her Christmas gift for a time, we guess."

TODAY'S BEST STORY

Son—"Our garage man's got a better radio set than ours, mama."
Mother—"What makes you think that, dear?"
Son—"He said he knew he'd get hell when he went home tonight."

Danger Signals of Possible Cancer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

CANCER is our most dreadful disease. It is dreadful because it is neglected in the beginning. It need not be dreadful

DR. COPELAND.

if taken in time. What are the signs of cancer—the danger signals? I saw them briefly stated and well stated quite recently. These are the chief things to heed: Any lump, especially in the breast. Any irregular bleeding or discharge. Any sore that does not heal. Persistent indigestion with loss of weight. You might have one or all of these symptoms and not have cancer. You need not be scared to death if you have one of them, but, if you are wise, you will find out why you have it. No matter if the cause of your symptom is a trifling thing, it should be gotten rid of anyhow. The chief cause for neglect of one of these signals is not failure of the patient to realize it. It is the terrible fear that an operation may be needed. It may well be that an operation will not be needed. Medical treatment may be the only thing required. I have heard thousands of people say: "I wouldn't have an operation. But it isn't so that you would die first. Even though you had cancer, long before it came time to die you would be demanding and crying for an operation. It is human nature to want to live.

It is natural, too, to put off an operation just as long as possible. But that isn't sensible, is it? If by any chance the suspicious symptom is really a sign of cancer and of a type requiring operation, your own good judgment says that the quicker it is performed, the greater is the chance of complete success.

You dread an operation because you think it will hurt. Perhaps you are afraid of the anesthetic. I had been operating many years before I ever had any reason to take an anesthetic. I am frank to confess I did not relish the prospect of taking it myself. But after having had an anesthetic and repeating the experience a couple of times, I am prepared to say it is not at all an unpleasant experience. If I were told tomorrow that I must take an anesthetic and have an operation I wouldn't dread it a bit. Experience has taught me it isn't dreadful at all—not half as bad as having a tooth extracted.

It is a neglected sore or lump or bleeding place that is dangerous. The place in question "breaks down"—it becomes cancerous. In the beginning it may be of no consequence and be easily overcome. That is the time to give it attention.

Don't keep your suspicions to yourself. Share it at once with your family doctor. In all probability he will laugh at your fears. But, I beg of you, don't neglect these danger signals.

Answers to Health Queries

W. E. P. Q.—Is an operation the only cure for a fistula?

A.—Yes.

W. Q.—I am a young man of 24 troubled with hard and rapid beating of the heart on the least exertion. I chew tobacco. Should I refrain? I am also bothered with pains in the back of neck and shoulder, but they are not severe—what would cause this condition? Should I indulge in athletics?

A.—May be due to nervousness, indigestion, or there may be some slight abnormality of the heart itself. Examination will determine the necessary treatment. Yes, it often interferes with proper digestion. Neuralgia may be the cause of these pains. Be sure that there is no infection in your system. This would depend upon the result of the examination. If you have a heart condition you should avoid overexertion.

P. R. Q.—Would a person who is subject to sudden attacks of appendicitis always have a tired feeling?

2.—What would cause pains in the left side every time a person bends over?

3.—What would cause bilious headache?

4.—What would cause a raw sensation in the back part of the nose?

5.—What causes a discharging ear?

A.—No. Probably due to auto-intoxication. Avoid poor elimination.

2.—May be due to gases in the system.

3.—Due to faulty diet and poor elimination.

4.—May be due to nasal catarrh. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

5.—This condition requires medical attention.

HAWAIIAN CHIEFS PLAN 12 AIRPORTS

HONOLULU, T. H.—Dec. 30.—(U P)—So firmly do territorial officials believe that Hawaii's future development rests to a large extent on creation and maintenance of adequate air ports that within the very near future 12 landing fields will be available on five islands for use by commercial aviators.

A portion of the fair grounds at Waikiki will be used as an airfield having a central location. Also near Honolulu is the John Rodgers memorial airport which is still under construction.

Outside of Honolulu will be airports on the islands of Kauai, Maui, Hawaii and Molokai.

Army authorities already have indicated that certain fields established in the territory by military aviation officials may be made available for commercial fliers.

It is hoped that the department of commerce and the post office department will encourage establishment of air mail, passenger and express freight lines between the islands.

Encouragement of commercial aviation in the islands rests with the territorial aeronautical commission which has the close cooperation of the territorial land commission.

JACOB WILSON DIES

LONDON, O., Dec. 30.—Jacob Wilson, 70, died at home of daughter Mrs. Ora Freeze. A son, brother and sister also survive. Funeral was today at Summerford. A marriage license was issued to Charles Siders, 23, Point Pleasant, W. Va., and Alice Eckard, 18, Darby township, Justice Mary C. Clark officiated.

The 1928 Model girl will be at the auto show.

WESTERN MORALITY CRITICIZED IN CHINA

PEKING, Dec. 30.—(UP)—Western morality, manners and dress were strongly criticized by speakers who addressed a special assembly of the National Normal university in honor of the 19th anniversary of the institution.

Director Mao Peng-hui warned Chinese college women against trying to imitate the civilization of the west and urged them to cling to the "old morality." He described the extraordinary progress made during recent years in the education of Chinese women, but concluded that it would be lost effort if the educated Chinese women persisted in her intention to adopt western ways.

Another speaker said that the education of women in Europe and America had a long tradition and centuries of development.

SURE WAY TO STOP NIGHT COUGHING

Persistent night coughing is usually due to causes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. A remarkable prescription known as Thoxine, working on an entirely different principle, goes directly to the cause, and is guaranteed to stop the stubbornest cough within 15 minutes. One swallow is all that's needed. If it fails, get your money back. No chloroform or other harmful drugs. Safe for children. Equally good for sore throat, for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. Ask for Thoxine, 35c, 60c and $1.00. Sold by Hamilton & Ryan and all good drug stores. (Adv.)

POLICE GRILL HICKMAN'S PAL ABOUT SLAYING

in the holdup which resulted in the murder, and named Hunt as his accomplice. The latter is only 16 years old.

Jury Starts Tuesday

The grand jury investigation will begin next Tuesday, the day on which Hickman is scheduled to enter his plea to the charge of kidnapping and murdering the Parker girl.

Beside investigating the Toms murder and several other killings, the grand jury will attempt to find whether Hunt had any connection with the Parker case. They will also inquire into several murders committed in and near Chicago during the period last fall when Hickman was in that city.

It is believed the grand jury investigation also will include questioning of Mrs. Martha M. Driskell, Hunt's step-grandmother, concerning the suicide of A. F. Driskell, Hunt's grandfather, last May. Hickman and Hunt lived for some time with Mrs. Driskell.

Young Hunt was questioned for hours in the District Attorney's office concerning his relations with Hickman. It was understood he stood by his confession, made shortly after his arrest, in which he admitted taking part with Hickman in the Toms hold-up and several other robberies, but absolutely denied any connection with the Parker case.

Gets Time Extension

When arraigned late yesterday before superior judge Carlos Hardy, Hickman was granted an extension of time to answer the kidnapping and murder indictments, on petition of his attorney, Jerome K. Walsh of Kansas City, who told the court he had just arrived in town and would like several days in which to familiarize himself with the case.

SIGNING BONDS FOR FRIENDSHIP IS CONDEMNED

worable for another. A person signing a surety bond is bound from the very beginning and everyone who signs it is equally responsible.

A guarantor is one who is secondarily liable.

A slight alteration of a note, the speaker declared, makes it invalid.

Mr. Terwilliger denounced the signing of bonds, declaring that there are bonding houses which should assume the liability and not individuals. The holder of a note hates to get it from the surety, realizing that it is "blood money" and yet this step becomes necessary at times.

Do Not Sign Bonds

Signing a guardian's bond is just as vicious, he said, declaring it "would be a good idea not to sign any bonds."

The attorney said that it would be better for a man to loan his friend money to secure bonding from a surety house, rather than to jeopardize his own property and interests by signing any sort of a bond.

MAYOR ENTERS BUSINESS

LANCASTER, O., Dec. 30—Mayor H. A. Alspach, when he retires Saturday after serving two two-year terms, will open a real estate and insurance office. Alspach was twice elected on the Democratic ticket, with Klan support, but ran on an independent ticket last November and was defeated by R. U. Hastings, Democrat.
